

GOV. COX AT ST. PAUL

Favors Self-Determination for Ireland—Drives Race Horse at Fair Grounds.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 7.—Gov. Cox worked a full holiday yesterday on what he termed his "pilgrimage to the Pacific Coast." He made several speeches, viewed exhibits at the Minnesota State fair, where he drove a race horse around the track, attended receptions and last night went to Minneapolis for another address.

At the fair grounds Gov. Cox addressed what was said to be a record crowd for Minnesota and spoke to a large gathering later at the auditorium.

A statement that he favored application of the principle of self-determination to Ireland was made by the candidate in response to a question from a man in his audience.

"If elected president," he was asked, "will you recognize the Irish republic?"

"I am in favor of the application of the principle of self-determination in Japan, in China, in Persia, in Turkey, and in Ireland," was the governor's reply after several passages with his inquisitor and a preliminary statement.

"This is No Pink Tea Fight!"

The reply drew loud applause and ended interruptions. The governor preceded his reply with a statement that the armistice was based on President Wilson's "fourteen points," including that of self-determination, and that Article 10 would protect weak nations from external aggression.

The league was advocated by the governor to his auditorium audience as a pre-requisite to world readjustment.

Gov. Cox declared that "big business" was trying to elect the candidate of the senatorial oligarchy. Commenting on local newspaper criticisms, he said:

"Who is it that's squealing? The same crowd that fought a sick man on a sick bed in the White House for a year. This is not going to be a pink tea fight nor a pillow contest."

The governor accused the "senatorial oligarchy" of having "stolen" the republican organization and appealed to the rank and file of the republicans.

"I guarantee my ointment," says Peterson of Buffalo, "to cure eczema; to stop the itching at once and any reliable druggist will cheerfully refund your money if PETERSON'S OINTMENT doesn't do everything I say it will do."

William A. Carley of Franklin, N. Y., is surely a wise man. He writes: "I used PETERSON'S OINTMENT on a little boy suffering terribly with eczema. It did the work."

Then there is Alex Lottell, a brave friend of Buffalo who is glad to write as follows: "I had an old sore on my leg for many years. The best doctors failed. PETERSON'S OINTMENT entirely healed the sore quickly." After from ever in Canada comes a letter from A. Blockley, stating: "The best thing I ever hit for itching piles is PETERSON'S OINTMENT." together with independents, to vote their "intelligence."

Cheered As He Drives at Top Speed

The governor was welcomed with frequent applause during his activities here, and also when he swept around the track in a sulky guided by Peter Nash, a thoroughbred, 2.01 1-3 chestnut pacer, in a workout. The governor swept down the home stretch at top speed, while cheers rang from the grandstand.

At the state fair, Governor Cox was presented the picture "October Day in Minnesota," by Knute Helder of Minneapolis, which won the gold medal. Accepting the picture Governor Cox said:

"I accept the picture with the condition that it be established in the East room of the White House."

League As Aid to Labor

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 7.—Labor and agriculture were subjects discussed at the Minnesota state fair grounds here yesterday by Gov. Cox. He declared that interests of both would be served by success of the League of Nations.

Measures to increase farm production and labor supply were advocated by the democratic presidential nominee and he declared again for collective bargaining by labor. He also pledged himself specifically to increase salaries for postal employees.

Referring to the League of Nations Gov. Cox said:

"Millions of men, women and children in devastated regions of Europe are literally starving to death when America has the ability and resources to provide for them all. But this provision can be made only when reconstruction of the world has been undertaken under a definite plan. Until peace is accomplished little headway can be made."

"Waste and extravagance must continue until by the nullification of our Treaty of Peace we and the other countries of the world know definitely where we stand."

Turning to the labor question, Gov. Cox continued: "I think that the solution is in the dawn of a new day, when the human soul and the human body shall count for more than the sound dollar. Industrial disputes cannot be avoided, but industrial disputes can be prevented from menacing the welfare of the nation when both parties to the disputes can be made to understand that government is fair and that neither one nor the other may gain an advantage."

"Labor day came to be as one of the mile posts on the road of progress. But for progressivism labor day could not have been. Reactionists would not recognize it. They consist primarily of the holders of privilege conferred by laws."

"Labor should have the right to organize and through representatives of their own choosing negotiate collective bargaining. Care must be exercised that government at no time be made oppressive in maintaining the laws of the land."

"I believe the government should provide for proper investigation in all cases with provision for the filing of the facts without prejudice, so that the public may have full information. The right to free speech and free press and the right of orderly assembly, guaranteed by the constitution, must never be infringed."

"To long have we urged the downtrodden of other lands to come to us as laborers without giving a thought to their proper absorption in the melting pot. Americanization must be seriously undertaken by the government, with insistence upon full co-operation by the employers of this labor."

Gov. Cox reiterated his advocacy of federal reclamation aid, agricultural extension and homebuilding. He said federal regulation of cold storage would "break the circle of profiteering."

LETTER FROM MRS. BRUCE

Tells Remarkable Story of Sickness and Recovery.

Brookburg, Ind.—"When I was a young girl I clerked in my father's store and I lifted heavy boxes which caused displacement and I suffered greatly. I was married at the age of eighteen and went to a doctor about my trouble and he said if I had a child I would be all right. After three years twins came to me and I did get all right but three years later a baby boy came and I was troubled again. I could scarcely do any work at all and suffered for four years. A neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it for a year or more. Now I have a baby girl and do not have any female trouble. You can do anything you like with my letter to help others."

—Mrs. J. M. Bauer, R. F. D. 3, Brookburg, Ind.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for more than forty years.

Many women suffer from ailments peculiar to their sex and which in most cases may be readily relieved by this famous root and herb medicine.

HOUSTON, Sept. 7.—A sensational attempt by Texas national guard officers to kidnap G. V. Sanders, editor of the Houston Press, and take him to Galveston for trial before a court-martial for his vigorous criticism of the way state troops have been trying to break a strike of coastwise dockworkers was repulsed at the Houston Country club the other night.

Guard officers ordered to bring Sanders within the jurisdiction of Brig. Gen. Jake Wolters, who commands troops maintaining martial law in Galveston, did not march boldly up to the office of the Houston Press and arrest him. They came quietly at night dressed in mufti. They visited his home in a quiet residential district.

Sanders was not at home. This fact and the further fact that these officers, acting outside their martial law zone, were in a hurry to execute their task at the expense of the editor of the Houston Press, from being kidnapped and his constitutional rights outraged.

He was at the Houston Country club. Red Pills and Female Weakness

With a woman complains of persistent pains and discomforts, one is safe in saying that she is troubled with a malady peculiar to her sex, and that she suffers from that disease, or agglomeration of diseases, which is generally called Female Weakness.

This disease is more frequently met in married women and women at the change of life, but still it also attacks young girls who have to work for their living. Female Weakness may be caused by various reasons, such as exposure to cold, lack of proper care, hard work, lack of nutrition, etc., but the main cause, and one which never fails to bring that disease on as a result, is Anaemia.

Anaemia will thin the blood, and lower the strength of its victim, and as soon as a woman becomes anaemic, the various symptoms which are usually known as female weakness will make their appearance. These symptoms are pains in the stomach, kidneys, often headaches, and always a tired feeling, and seldom good digestion, always bearing-down pains, irregular and painful periods.

Walking, even the fact of remaining standing for a certain time, and the least exertion, will increase the symptoms. If these symptoms are let alone, and if nothing is done by the patient, they will rapidly increase, and are apt to bring on more serious trouble.

The best treatment for Anaemia, and consequently for female weakness, which as a rule accompanies Anaemia, are Red Pills for Pale and Weak Women, and all women ought to start taking them at the first symptoms of weakness, and not wait until their trouble becomes chronic, their health broken, and their constitution debilitated by nervous symptoms, stomach trouble, and irregularities of all kinds.

RED PILLS are sold in boxes of 50 pills, 50 cents a box, six boxes $2.50. If they are not at your merchant's, they will be sent to you by mail on receipt of price. Franco-American Chemical Company, Limited, 212 Milk Street, Boston, Mass. 102-74

Keep Looking Young!

Nobody wants to grow old looking any faster than they can help; some look old at forty while others don't begin to show their age at seventy. Everybody knows that to keep young looking you have first got to be blessed with good health, and second to do as little worrying as possible. Most of the ills that the flesh is heir to are caused by a disordered stomach, liver or kidneys. These can be regulated and kept in good condition by taking SEVEN BARKS, nature's great remedy of roots and herbs.

Digestive troubles also spoil beauty; rob you of sleep, make dark rings around the eyes and ruin the complexion. Let SEVEN BARKS digest your food and tone up your stomach, then you may eat what you like; bright eyes will soon return, and you will feel fit for your daily duties.

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. If you keep these organs cleansed and in proper working order, old age can be postponed and life prolonged beyond the average age. No better remedy can be found than SEVEN BARKS to keep the stomach, liver and kidneys in good order, thus assuring you good health.

of the Morgan and Mallory steamship line.

The dock strike in Galveston is months old. June 8, Gov. W. P. Hobby ordered state troops to Galveston on representations that city officials couldn't or wouldn't protect strike-breakers in moving freight.

Open shop advocates claimed that there was terrific freight congestion, that four million bushels of wheat needed abroad to prevent starvation was held up and that unexpressed rioting was going on.

Official Protest

These charges were vigorously denied by city officials as well as by striking union coastwise dockworkers. It was pointed out that deep sea dockworkers who were being paid a living wage handled wheat and other export cargoes.

But the Open Shop association plea for bayonets financed by taxpayers was supported by the Galveston Commercial association and the Texas chamber of commerce.

The troops came in. They camped in a city park. City officials ordered them to move. They moved to a sandy stretch of beach miles from the docks that were theoretically in need of a heavy and constant guard.

Citizens Angered

Citizens who knew there had been no disorder justifying the invasion of the state troops resented the presence of the open shop army. They backed up their city officials' demands that the troops be withdrawn.

The answer of Gov. Hobby was the forcible removal of all city officials from the mayor down to the last peace officer, on the ground that they were not co-operating with the militia. By this order Gen. Wolters, the leading corporation lawyer and open shop advocate of Houston, was made dictator of Galveston.

Angered at the way the voters of Texas rebuked Woltersism and Baileyism at the polls he turned to vent his ire on the only newspaper editor in southern Texas who has had the courage to protest against the way the citizens of Galveston have been deprived of their liberty by the misguided might of the governor.

Neither Gov. Hobby nor Gen. Wolters have disavowed as yet the bunglesome attempt of the national guard officers who attempted to kidnap and try before a military court their leading but by no means their only civilian critic.

Worse Than Bolshevism

fairness of the class of men conducting our great industries. He said he knew many of the mill agents and overseers of Lowell and always found them to be courteous, kind and reasonable, to be men who regard their employees in the factories, not as machines but as men with human feelings and human hearts. Indeed, he could say from observation, that in dealing with their employees, these men are largely swayed by Christian principles.

He pointed out the improved conditions that exist in the factories today, as compared with those of years ago, when the factory people had to work from 5 o'clock in the morning till 7 at night with half an hour for breakfast and three quarters of an hour for dinner. This change, he said, was due largely to the efforts of organized labor.

"We are now face to face with one of the greatest crises in the history of the world," said the reverend speaker. Doctrines are being preached that would overthrow our system of civilization. This is seen in unfortunate Russia, for whose people we should pray that they may be delivered from the sway of the radicals. The same condition threatens the people of this country unless they throw aside radicalism wherever it appears, whether it be the radicalism of capital or of labor. The success of the future will depend upon the degree of co-operation maintained between capital and labor for their common good. Each has rights that must be considered and conceded by the other. Capital and labor must work together for the reason that if capital suffers, labor will not escape; if capital prospers, labor will share that prosperity. The great problem is to bring capital and labor together on an equitable basis of security for capital with reasonable profits; and for labor, a living wage with security of employment. By a living wage I do not mean, said the speaker, what will secure the mere necessities of life, but enough to provide the father with a comfortable home, to educate his children, and to make due provision for sickness and old age.

In the economic laws, the principle must be recognized that labor is not a commodity, that the wage earners are not chattels, but human beings made in the image of God, held responsible for their families and their obligations to the community. In this relation between capital and labor there is no room for the autocrat. We want men with big heads, that is great capacity for directing affairs; but they must also have big hearts. There must be perfect co-operation between capital and labor in order to secure the best interests of both and attain the best results.

"Who constitutes the most threatening class in this country today?" asked Dr. Keleher. I have no hesitation in saying that it is the profiteer who is not satisfied with fair profits, or with one million, but who wants many millions. Nothing is so calculated to undermine the foundations of law and order as a sense of injustice on the part of the people and lack of protection by the government. Take for example the single item of coal. Why is it that the industrial life of New England is threatened today because we cannot get coal enough for our factories and our homes? Why have we to pay two or three times as much for a ton of coal as it costs at the mines? The cause is obviously due to profiteering and it should be stopped. It should be stopped before it spreads discontent throughout the land. When a government fails to protect the people, it sows the seeds of revolution in popular discontent. The government to prevent such dangers should provide a remedy and do so at once, not let it go on indefinitely. If there is no law to stop it, let the president call congress in special session to frame a law. If the constitution stands in the way, which is not likely, let the constitution be changed.

Dr. Keleher in conclusion said that the great natural resources provided by God for man's use should be available by all men, while at the same time preserving the rights of private property. The people must be saved from the efforts of the few in controlling the necessities of life, so that the rights of capital and labor may be duly protected and that by co-operation and mutual good will, all the people may enjoy peace, happiness and prosperity.

Mayor Thompson's Address

His Honor Mayor Perry D. Thompson arrived a little late, but heard the greater part of Dr. Keleher's address. He was greeted with liberal applause as he bowed to the audience. He said he had little left to say on the issues of interest to labor after the able manner in which they had been discussed by Rev. Dr. Keleher. He intended to be brief also because of the threatening weather conditions. He congratulated the labor unions on the fine observance of the day set apart, not as a vacation but in honor of the man who earns his livelihood by the sweat of his brow. He congratulated the unions upon the industrial peace referred to by the previous speaker, and hoped it would long continue. It is a tribute to the intelligence of our labor leaders as well as to the men who manage our various industries.

It is a proof that the men in the ranks of the unions, appreciate the great privileges of liberty which they enjoy in this glorious country in thus upholding law and order in the industrial life of our beloved city.

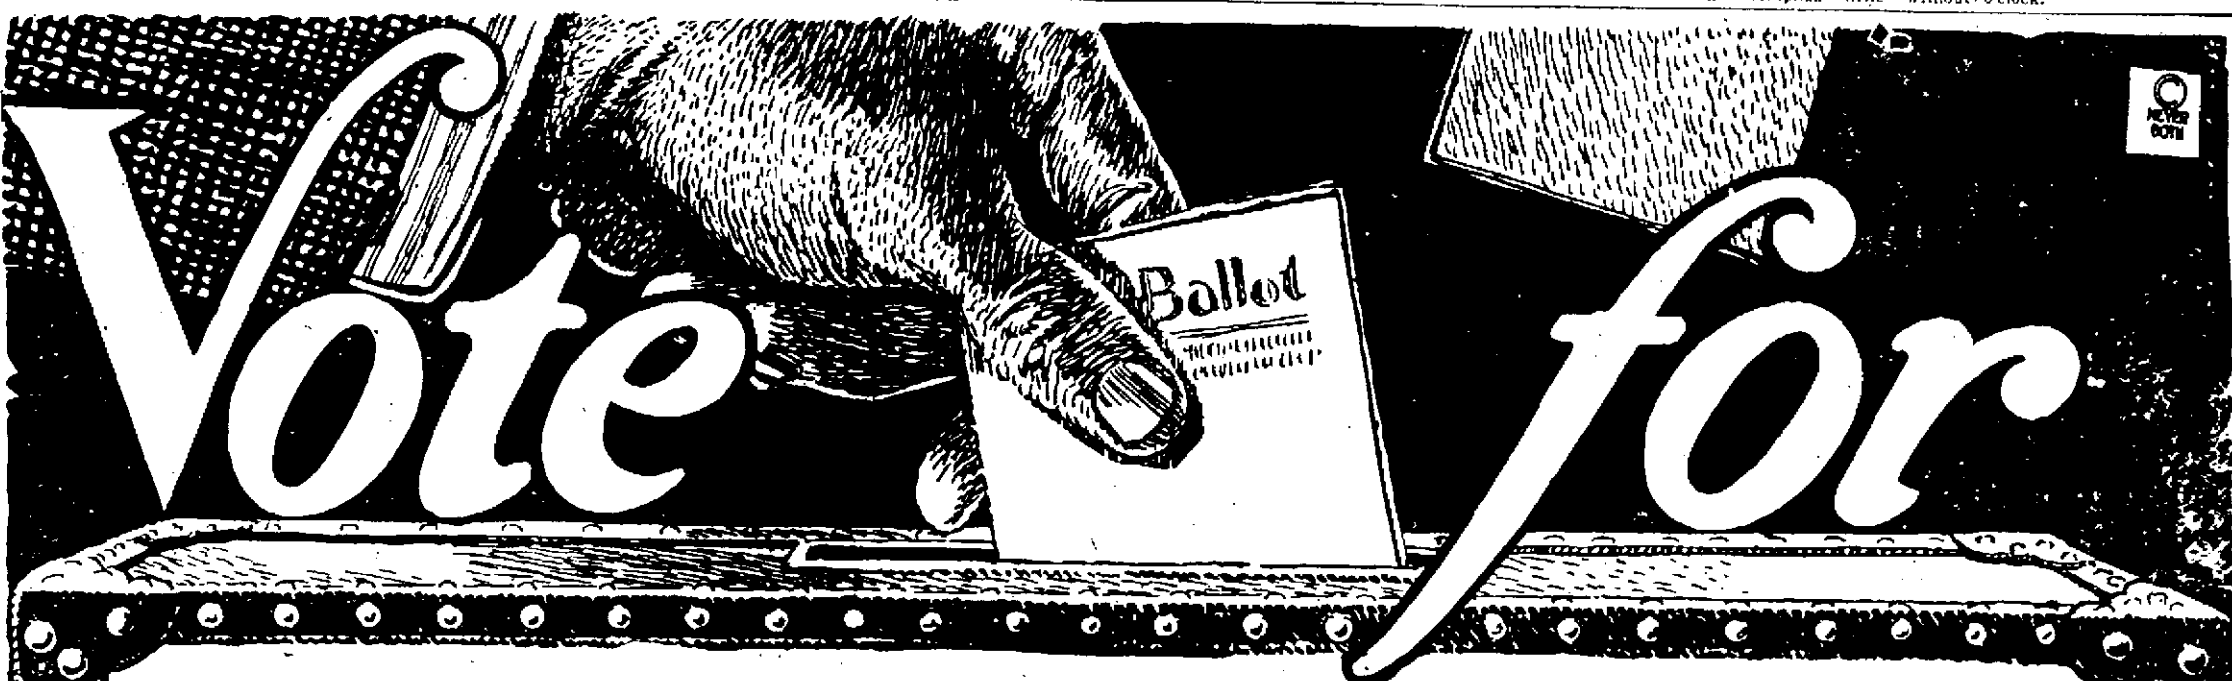

Somewhere in our dictionaries, he said, there is one word to which he would like to call the attention of the

their support, and so it is with labor unions. By the process of sticking together they have accomplished much. Stick together not to injure somebody else, not for your own selfish welfare, but that you may aid in bringing happiness and prosperity to the other fellow. Spread this principle of sticking together for the right, throughout this country so that when labor day comes again we shall have accomplished greater good for others as well as for ourselves. Keep your eyes turned upward to the great Author of all who will lead you on to the light that never fails.

It had been expected that James T. Moriarty, of the Boston city council, would be present, but he failed to arrive.

The committee in charge of the evening meeting consisted of Francis A. Warnock, J. Frank Burke, Frank Simpson and Dana Harr.

The military band rendered a fine concert program closing about 10 o'clock.

Count and Countess de Coussin

NOBILITY WAS TRAVELING "INCOG"

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Plain "Mr. and Mrs." were all the handles attached to Pierre Jouen and his bride, Count and Countess de Coussin, of Normandy, traveling incog through here on their way to San Salvador where they own a coffee plantation.

Although the count is holder of war decorations from three nations and was famous in France as the man who did most in training American doughboys for their great task, he was so modest that it was only after fellow passengers on the Pacific Mail liner pointed him out that he laughingly admitted his identity.

GARDEN NEWS FOR THE PRESENT WEEK

The season is rapidly approaching when we must consider the storage of our garden vegetables. The type and method of storage depends almost entirely upon the quantity and particular vegetable to be stored. Most home gardeners growing any appreciable quantity of vegetables should have a storage in their home cellar. This should consist of a room partitioned in one corner of the cellar. A room need not be partitioned where there is no artificial heat in the cellar and where the cellar is damp. Most home cellars now have heating apparatus, therefore it is desirable to have one corner set aside as a storage location. The partitions can be easily made of 2x3 or 2x4 inch lumber, papered and sheathed on both sides. If possible, the room should be located in a corner of the cellar where access can be had to a cellar window. The center light of the window should be removed and a wooden flue built from the lower half of the window right down to within 6 inches of the cellar bottom. This is to let in to the bottom of the storage room, cool air. A damper, of course, should be placed in this cold air flue. The upper half of the window light should be closed with a trap door which can be easily opened and shut. This is to be used as an outlet for the warm air. With the damper in the cold air flue and this warm air outlet it is easy to regulate the temperature in the storage room. During the fall they can be opened up in the evening and the cold, damp air permitted to enter during the night and the damper closed up in the morning, keeping the warm air out and holding the cold, damp air in. Shelves and bins can be built in this storage room in which are placed the vegetables or fruits.

If one has a large quantity of root crops and does not care to store them in the cellar, they may be stored in so-called pits out doors in the garden or by the house. Beets, carrots, turnips are placed in bins and covered with straw, leaves or other litter, upon which is placed a layer of dirt, over which is placed more litter.

These pits should not be made until danger of heavy frosts, beets, for instance should not be frozen badly out of doors. Parsnips and salsify are better if they have been frozen, therefore the common practice is to permit them to freeze out of doors and bring them into the cellar frozen, or cover them in pits while they are frozen.

This means, of course, digging them before the ground freezes and leaving them in a pile outside so that they can freeze.

Clean Up Gardens.

As the crops mature and are harvested, the litter should be cleaned up. Any litter such as corn stalks, bean plants, squash vines, tomato vines and the like large enough for corn borers to enter should be collected, permitted to dry and then be burnt. Anything in which the borer cannot enter should be spaded under in order to furnish humus to the soil. An earlier article suggested that seed rye should be sown upon all bare ground as soon as crops are harvested.

This is the last article which will appear this season on home gardening. Any home gardeners or others who have been reading the articles from time to time and who have other questions on any phase of storage or home garden work, should write to the Middlesex county bureau of agriculture and Home Economics, 7 Moody street, Waltham, Mass.

What Uniformity Does for the Cord Tire User

If anyone asked you what uniformity in tires meant, you would probably say—getting the same repeated economy tire after tire and season after season.

There you would put your finger on the most vital thing about cord tires.

Give the cord tire user uniform performance and you give him one hundred per cent of the cord principle.

Leave quality to accident and the result is different.

People will tell you that the United States Rubber Company has been making cord tires longer than anybody else. Since 1903, when one of its factories created the first automobile cord tire ever made in America.

But the outcome has gone far beyond the cord idea, great as that is in itself.

The United States Rubber Company laid down the most rigid manufacturing code that any tire has ever been submitted to.

Going into the jungles of Sumatra and developing 100,000 acres of rubber lands, which include the largest rubber planted area in the world. Starting uniformity right at nature's source.

Erecting a fabric mill devoted exclusively to cord fabric. Manned by specialized employees working with selected mechanical equipment from threshold to shipping platform. To make all U. S. Royal Cord fabric uniform.

U. S. Royal Cord Tires occupy a peculiarly separate position in today's vast tire market.

They are more sought-after than sold.

For their makers are more interested in protecting the cord idea through uniformity than they are in selling the name of a thing without its economy service.

The car owner who seeks United States standards in tubes is well paid in more mileage for his tires. U. S. Red Tubes. U. S. Grey Tubes.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

SOME QUESTIONS

Mr. Scribble Scratch, the fairy school-master, made a low bow before the fairy Queen, and then turned his gaze upon the company. And the company, certainly returned it, for the school-master was a most peculiar person. He was as tall and thin as a birch-rod, only much pleasanter looking, having a mouth that insisted on turning up at the corners, although he tried his best to keep it turned down, to make him look more dignified. And his ears, poor things, looked as though they had a disagreement with his head and were stretching as far away as they could conveniently get, perhaps because in such a position they could hear the faintest sound. His nose, too, seemed to be trying to get away as far as possible, and in the effort had grown to quite a length. And he wore enormous spectacles, and a long-tailed coat, and let his hair grow in a forelock which helped him to think when he pulled it. Yes, Mr. Scribble Scratch was quite a person, and he didn't wish you to forget it.

The Fairy Queen introduced everybody, although Tinkling and Scribble and come highly recommended. "I've been wondering if we haven't found some helpers for you, Scribble Scratch," smiled the Queen nodding toward the children. "These people have had some experience in Fairyland and came highly recommended."

"Hm!" coughed Scribble Scratch pulling the corners of his mouth down. The good news had turned them up at once and he was afraid of looking too pleased.

"Hm!" said he again and this time looked over the tops of his glasses. "That depends on their education only. What's the capital of America?"

"Capital A. If you please," answered Nancy timidly.

"A million dollars," put in Nick, who'd heard his father talk business. "Both right," nodded Scribble Scratch marking in a book. "You're fired."

The Meadow Grove school was under an old oak tree on the edge of Rustling Forest in the Land-You-and-I-Know-About, the seats being moss-covered stones of various sizes, depending on the pupils who were to sit upon them. The desks, too, were of stone but not moss covered, of course.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

KEITH'S THEATRE

There is a laugh in nearly every line, and a few sandwiched in between the lines for good measure, in "Suits," in which Arthur and Morton Havel are appearing this week at Keith's theatre.

The number opens with the two Havel appearing as tallor's dummies in a store window. One represents a suit of clothes worth $38, while the selling price of the apparel displayed by the other can be purchased for $14.

There is a wordy duel between the two dummies that brings down the house. It ends in the two figures leaving their places as store window ornaments and engaging in a fast and furious fracas with the boxing gloves. Dancing and singing end the act.

There is some splendid singing of the best quality provided by Ralph Dunbar's solo singers in "Almost Single." The singers make up a mixed quartet and they render selections that are pleasing together and as solos.

"Almost Single" is the title of the pleasing skit presented by Julia Nash and C. H. O'Donnell. Miss Nash appears as the jealous wife of a flirtatious husband whom she upbraids with force and vigor after their return from the theatre where the male member of the partnership has shown too much appreciation of feminine charms.

to please his spouse. The act moves with swiftness and despatch to the point where the family appears to be on the verge of shipwreck from which it is rescued by the intervention of a maid servant of the household.

It is difficult to tell whether Jed Dooley excels as a rope-spinner or top-notch comedian. He is an adept performer with the rope and he has a line of talk that keeps the audience interested and grinning.

Margaret Ford, a singer of songs of today, furnishes some pleasing musical entertainment and causes her audience to sit up with surprise when she suddenly shifts from a melodious soprano voice to a deep baritone.

Redford and Winchester make their entrance upon the stage in a tank and give an interesting and laughable exhibition of juggling.

Sam Green does some good musical stunts with the violin and also exhibits some lively dancing steps. He is supported by Mildred Myra, of many accomplishments.

There is the usual excellent screen program including News Kinograms.

OPERA HOUSE

If large and enthusiastic audiences at initial theatre performances are indicative of success during a coming season, then the 1920-21 engagement of the Lowell Players at the local Opera House, judging from the attendance and spirit of the spectators, will be one of their most successful in this city. The first performances for the fall season were given yesterday afternoon and evening before capacity audiences, and aside from applause for the general excellence of the production, great receptions were extended to the members of the cast.

Miss Marguerite Fields, the leading lady, whose acting last year won her the favor of Lowell audiences, was obliged to spare a few moments from her part in the play to acknowledge the reception tendered her at both performances. Miss Priscilla Knowles and Jack Bennett, supervisor of the present production, were also forced to acknowledge a greeting upon their first appearance.

The story chosen for the first play of the season is "Civilian Clothes," a romance by Thomas Buchanan and one of Oliver Morosco's most successful productions. Mr. J. William Shaske, manager, has received congratulations upon his opening selection. Just as the characters in the story itself, are true to life, the interpretation of the proof of the proverb that a man can't be judged by his clothes. It shows the difference in a girl's eye, between the dash and vigor of a man dressed in a military officer's uniform and one garbed in the commonness of civilian dress, and relates how that difference affected a romance begun on the battlefield of France.

The leading lady is cast as the little aristocratic and prudish girl of the South who married an officer while she was serving as a Red Cross nurse in France. Milton Byron, new leading man, taking the part of the officer, makes a natty appearance in a uniform, but in the opinion of Florence Lanham, the nurse, he is a very much changed individual in civilian clothes. Miss Lanham regretted her act of marriage when the glamour of military dress slowly fell to the back-ground after the war. Mr. Byron was very cordially received throughout the play and has already seemingly won his spurs for the coming season. The acting of the other members of the cast was appreciated, while much applause was extended to Henry Gurvey, the juvenile man, Miss Florence Hill, Miss Sarah Kyles, Maxwell Driscoll and Fred Woodbury.

THE STRAND THEATRE

William Farnum is being featured at the Strand theatre during the first three days of the week in "The Joyous Trouble Makers," a gripping dramatic story concerning a youth who finds gold by accident, where men long have sought it in vain. The jealousy of the thwarted seekers makes the smile until something happens that involves the girl he loves. Then he frowns, shows his teeth and something happens. The youth's fighting spirit is happy. Continued to Page Six.

LOVING CUP FOR F. P. ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, democratic candidate for vice president, took a prominent part in the Labor day celebration in Brooklyn yesterday, placing a wreath at the foot of the statue of Lafayette and later being the recipient of a loving cup from the 13,000 employees of the New York navy yard. Among those present at the exercises was the candidate's mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt.

The loving cup was presented in appreciation of his services as assistant secretary of the navy. He said the achievements of the navy could not have been accomplished had not the work of the men in the navy yard been of the finest and best.

Mr. Roosevelt started late yesterday afternoon for Eastport, Me., to join his family for a three-days' vacation before resuming campaign work.

aroused at the acts of treachery directed at him and the girl of his heart. Of course in the beginning the odds are largely against him and his struggles to overcome the obstacles and barriers that are placed in his path are such that would discourage many a man, but such is not the case with Farnum, who tackles the job with characteristic calm and coolness and finally wins after a long and desperate battle. The play is a clever one and must be seen to be appreciated.

In addition to this clever production is another very good offering, "The Slim Princess," a Goldwyn offering featuring Mabel Normand in the title role. This play deals with a Moravian princess, who, because of her daintiness and slim, supple figure, was considered ineligible for marriage. The princess stands little chance of becoming a bride until a young American happens around and seems inclined to favor her daintiness. The program also provides a very enjoyable comedy and musical numbers that are very pleasing.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

There are two attractions on this week's program at the Merrimack Square theatre. "Civilian Clothes," an unusual picture in which Thomas Meighan and Miss Martha Lanham share honors, and "The Man of Straw," a story of the north, which is very interesting. There is also a comedy of the highest type as well as instructive films furnished by the International News Pictures. The orchestra selections are also very enjoyable.

"Civilian Clothes" unfolds the story of a young society miss, Florence Marshall, who during American's early career in the war sought relief from society life in the Salvation Army khaki and went to France. There she met Capt. Sam McGinnis, a rough-and-ready sort of a chap, who at the time of their meeting was giving the auxiliary women orders to retire to the rear under escort to avoid the danger of a coming encounter with the enemy. Despite her stubborn persistence to stay and witness a real battle, the woman was forced to go and this started a little love story between the pair, which finally led to a marriage.

Later the young madame was informed of the death of her husband after his identification as he had been found on the battlefield. She accepted the report as true and returned to America at the close of the war, heart-broken. She concealed the fact of marriage and resumed her place in society circles. Suddenly the young captain, who was now alive and returned, but was snubbed by his own wife because his civilian clothes did not fit her imagination of what a husband's dress should be, while his manners displeased her. After informing his wife that she should be taught democracy the young captain secured employment as a butler in a rich home, keeping his

INJURED HIS ARM

While at his work at the Tremont & Suffolk mill shortly before noon today, Francis Carrah, of 10 Tilden street, suffered severe injuries to his right arm. The ambulance removed him to the Lowell Corporation hospital.

Back Achy? Feel "All Worn Out?"

ARE you burdened from morning to night with a dull, nagging backache? Does any little exertion leave you "all worn-out"? Does it seem sometimes as if you just can't keep going? You know then, there is something wrong. So why not find out what it is and correct it? Very likely, it's your kidneys. Modern life with its hurry and worry, and lack of rest and sleep, throws a heavy strain upon the kidneys. The kidneys slow up and that tired, depressed feeling and constant backache, are but natural results. You may have headaches and dizzy spells, too, and a annoying kidney irregularities. Don't wait for dropsy, gravel, or dangerous Bright's disease. Determine to be well and stay well. Use DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS. DOAN'S have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

These Are Lowell Cases:

NEW YORK STREET

Mrs. Roy Laurie, 135 New York street, says: "I had attacks of kidney trouble and my back bothered me, especially in the morning. I felt weak and languid and often had dizzy headaches. I knew my kidneys were causing the trouble, for they were weak. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and used them as directed. They helped me right away. The dizziness tired feeling. My kidneys also became regular in action. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills highly for and headaches left me and I was free from that dull, what they have done for me."

Mrs. Laurie gave the above statement on May 5, 1919, and on February 17, 1920, she added: "I have had no return of kidney trouble since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me three years ago."

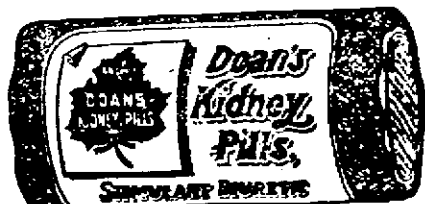

GAGE STREET

Wm. L. Hane, machinist, 21 Gage street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been a great help to me and I wouldn't be without them in my home. My work is trying on the back and kidneys. At times I have to work in a cramped position and it nearly breaks my back to bend or straighten. Mornings I was sore and lame. The kidney secretions passed irregularly. I used Doan's Kidney Pills as directed and soon felt like a different man. I could go about my work without any trouble with backache."

BELLEVUE STREET

Mrs. L. G. Gifford, 28 Bellevue street, gave the following statement April 3, 1914: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills for backache caused by kidney trouble. I was all worn out and suffered from rheumatic pains. Specks seemed to float before my eyes. My kidneys didn't act right at all. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and got much relief."

On February 17, 1919, Mrs. Gifford said: "There is no doubt about Doan's Kidney Pills being a splendid remedy for the kidneys, lumbago and rheumatic pains. They have done me a world of good and I cannot praise them highly enough."

No package of Doan's Kidney Pills is genuine unless it bears the maple leaf trade mark and the signature—"Jas. Doan"

OSGOOD STREET

H. W. Hilliard, city fireman, 20 Osgood street, says: "I suffered a long time with my kidneys before I could get anything to help me. I happened to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills and, believe me, I was glad to get them. They helped me from the start. Before I took Doan's, I had a dull, constant ache in the small of my back all the time. If I bent over, I could hardly straighten up again. Sharp pains would catch me in my back. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and caused me much annoyance. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of all this trouble and there has never been any return of it."

MIDDLESEX STREET

D. W. Parker, harness maker, 761 Middlesex street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have proven their value to me. I was in an awful bad fix with kidney and bladder trouble. I also had rheumatic pains in my limbs, which made my condition worse. I had to walk with a cane and I could hardly get to the store and back to my home, as I just had to hobble along. The kidney secretions were scanty and painful in passage. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they went right to the seat of the trouble. The kidney secretions became natural and the rheumatic pains left me. I have had no need of a cane for the past two years and cannot praise Doan's highly enough."

Mr. Thomas McGrath of Tyngsboro and Miss Gertrude Blodgett of North Chelmsford were married yesterday morning at St. John's church, North Chelmsford by Rev. Fr. Heaney. The best man was Mr. Harold Blodgett, a brother of the bride, while the bridesmaid was Miss Sarah McGrath, a sister of the groom. At the close of the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride and later the couple left on a honeymoon trip to New York and Albany. Upon their return they will make their home on the Groton road.

The marriage of Mr. George Patterson and Miss Margaret Gillhooley took place Sunday evening at St. Patrick's church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Frances Keenan. The best man was Mr. George Whelton, while the bridesmaid was Miss Mary L. Whelton. At the close of the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Whelton, 127 Mt. Vernon street, and later the couple left on an automobile trip to New York city. After October 1 they will be at home to their friends at Nashua, N. H.

Mogo—Lamoureux

At a nuptial mass celebrated at St. Jean Baptiste church at 7 o'clock this morning Mr. Armand C. Mogo and Christina M. Lamoureux were united in the bonds of matrimony, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Charles Denizot, O.M.I. The bride wore georgette crepe and bridal veil and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and sweet peas. The witnesses were Messrs. Anselm Lamoureux and Wilfrid Mogo. At the close of the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, 153 School street and later the couple left on a honeymoon trip to New York, Atlantic City and Washington. After Sept. 21 they will be at home to their friends at 173 School street.

Fontaine—Couture

Mr. Joseph A. Fontaine and Miss Blanche Couture were married yesterday morning at a nuptial mass celebrated in the private chapel of St. Joseph's rectory. The bride wore white georgette crepe with veil and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The witnesses were Messrs. Xavier Fontaine and Joseph Couture, fathers of the groom and bride respectively. At the close of the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, 307 Moody street, and attending the festivities were guests from Concord, N. H., and Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Fontaine, who were the recipients of numerous wedding gifts, left later on an extended honeymoon trip through the western part of the state and upon their return they will make their home at 12 Robert street.

Mr. Harry Smith, of Oneonta, N. Y. and Miss Mary A. McCann, daughter of the late Patrick J. McCann of this city, were married recently at St. Peter's church, Troy, N. Y., by Rev. Fr. Dolan. The bride was attended by Mrs. Kitty Ryan as matron of honor, while Mr. Edward Ryan acted as best man. The couple will make their home at Oneonta, N. Y.

MRS. NELLIE WOODSFORD SPEAKS TO MOTHERS

East Boston.—At 23 Lamson st., Mrs. Nellie Woodsford and her children now "live happy and grateful" to the kind neighbor who recommended Dr. True's Elixir to them. Mrs. Woodsford says: "My bowels were out of order and my breath was bad. I was shaky all over. I had terrible headaches and it seemed I had suffered years before your Dr. True's Elixir was brought to me. After a short time I was myself again, my bowels were all right and I'm full of gratitude. It may interest you to know also that once since my youngest child was terribly sick and it was a serious case. We all have your Elixir to thank for relieving her of stomach worms."

VIEW OF THE PARADE SHOWING CHIEF MARSHAL AND PAINTERS' UNION

Holiday Observance—

elect to spend the holiday week-end out of town.

An overcast sky came in with the break of day, bearing out the prognostications of the weather man that the holiday would be sprinkled with showers. Although they did not materialize, the clouds hung low enough to shut out the sun practically the entire day and undoubtedly this uncertainty kept hundreds of persons at home.

Sidewalks and curbs were well lined however, when the marchers passed through the downtown streets and full measures of appreciation were accorded them as they swung along. There was music galore, the national colors flew everywhere and the unions in the respective garbs of their trade made a satisfying appearance. There were no floats, but color was not lacking, for many of the paraders carried bouquets of flowers, the gifts of thoughtful friends.

In the afternoon there was a baseball game to attract several thousand men and women fans to the South common diamond, while the theatres were packed to capacity. The river also had its full quota of pleasure seekers, where the Lowell Motor Boat club ran off a program of speed events for gasoline launches and the city, at its municipal pool on the boulevard side, held swimming races as a fitting climax to a most successful season of regulated aquatic.

The evening mass meeting on the common, with the band stand for the speaker's rostrum, officially closed the day's program as far as it concerned the Trades & Labor council.

The labor men, themselves, were satisfied with the observance of the day and while they would have welcomed a longer parade and more pretentious, perhaps, they evidenced no lack of interest in labor's cause.

As the parade neared city hall, Mayor Thompson was ready with pistol and pencil to jot down facts which might lead to a selection of the best appearing representation in line, but this too had been done away with and no award was made.

Very Good Parade

The parade formed in Thorndike, Summer and Highland streets with the first division resting in Summer street. The second and third divisions marched Thorndike street, while the fourth division stood in Highland street. Shortly after 10 o'clock Chief Marshal Francis A. Warnock gave the "forward, march," command and the column swung into Thorndike street headed by the superintendent of police in the department automobile. The route of the parade was through Thorndike to Middlesex, to Gorham as far as Davis square, thence through Central to Merrimack, around Merrimack square into Bridge street as far as Sixth street, where the marchers countermarched back to Merrimack square, through Merrimack street, to Moody street, to Cabot street, back to Merrimack street and by city hall, where the parade was reviewed by Mayor and Mrs. Perry D. Thompson and the four city commissioners. Messrs. John P. Salmon, Jun. R. Donnelly, Dennis A. Murphy and George E. Marchand. At Monument square the chief marshal left the head of the parade and reviewed the marchers at the same time dismissing them. The parade was very good despite the fact that many craftsmen are out of the city. There was music galore, the organizations in line were well represented, the men marched with precision and thousands of people cheered them en route.

Heading the line was a platoon of police headed by Lieut. Connors. Then came the Lowell Military Band, followed by Chief Marshal Warnock and his staff composed of Daniel Moynahan, chief of staff; Fred Drouin, adjutant and the following aids: Bartondurphy, backsmiths, 213, Frank Nelson; carpenters, 148, D. P. Beauregard; cotton weavers, Henry Angew; dresser tenders, James Millette; loomfixers, Henry Hamilton; moulder, Michael Larkin; municipal employees, Charles O'Brien; painters, George E. Elfield; pavers and ramblers, Patrick Guthrie; Polish textile workers, Michael Wengert; teamsters, 72, Telesphore Cardinal; teamsters, 88, John Ashe; doffers, and spinners, Christo Maloney; ring-spinners, Albert Coulter; woolen spinners, Henry Tenney; railroad carmen, 135, Charles Flanagan.

Charles E. Anderson acted as marshal of the first division, which was composed of automobiles conveying representatives of the various labor organizations to the Trades and Labor council.

The second division had for marshal, Walter G. Roche and was composed of the textile organizations, each union being headed by its respective president. The United States Cartridge Co. band headed the division and the first organization in line was the Lowell Textile council, followed by the Polish Textile Workers. Next came the doffers' union, followed by the Beaumont's union. Next in line were the moulder of the Blusher Tenders' union. The Zouaves Drum and Bugle Corps of Notre Dame de Lourdes parish preceded the Ring Spinner Fixers' union. The O.M.I. Cadet Drum corps came next followed by the Woolen Spinners, followed by the Loomfixers' union.

The third division was composed of municipal employees and the Moulders' union and was marshaled by Murtha Lyons. Buckley's band was the first musical organization in line and was followed by the Health Department's union. Then came the City Teamsters, followed by the Irish Volunteers Fire and Drum corps. The Municipal Employees' union was next in line and the end of the division was taken up by the International Moulder's union.

The fourth division, Patrick Bradley, Marshal, was composed of building crafts and was headed by the Lowell Cadet band. The International Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers' union took up the lead, followed by the Carpenters' union. The Spindle City Drum corps came next followed by the Painters' union, the rear of the division and end of the parade being taken up by the Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators' union.

Most of the marchers wore their regular citizens' clothes and all carried small American flags. The chief marshal and staff were attired in frock coats and wore silk hats. The members of the Loomfixers' union wore white shirts, black trousers, black caps and black ties. They were very numerous and presented a fine appearance. The teamsters, chauffeurs, stablemen and helpers were attired in black trousers, black shirts, black caps and white ties. The representatives of the three locals of the Carpenters' union wore white shirts, black ties and straw hats bearing a hand inscribed "Lowell Carpenters". The Painters and Paperhangers wore white overalls and white caps, the former also wearing on the lapel of their jumpers handsome pins.

The chief marshal carried two huge bouquets of flowers, which were presented him by friends along the route of the parade. Henry Fortier, president of the Ring Spinner Fixers' union, who headed his organization, was also presented a handsome bouquet in Central street by little Miss Lillian Roberts.

At the close of the parade the various organizations repaired to their respective halls, where informal gatherings took place during which refreshments were served and musical numbers were given.

Stop Buying So Much Gas!

The Overland Sedan

Costs by the Month, Saves by the Mile!
Eats Up Distance, Saves Dollars!

On a railroad, it is the trip and not the ticket that completes the transaction; and it is so with an automobile. No institution can build up goodwill on good-byes.

The Willys-Overland Organization is just as interested in Overland owners after they have bought as before they are sold.

Saving you money on up-keep is just as important as saving you money on the price of the car. And when gasoline began to go up four years ago, word went out to our designers that Overland owners must be protected, and the price of gasoline must be brought down—but not at the price of comfort!—get that, for that was the crux of the problem.

Hypothetically, it was impossible, and yet—

Under stimulus of a great public need, and spurred on by the pride of a great reputation, the designers of the Overland have Done the Thing that Couldn't be Done!

they have unraveled still another insoluble secret of mechanics, by creating that marvel of mechanism, the new Suspension Triplex Spring, permitting the use of light alloy steels for economy, and acting as a pneumatic buffer between the Road and You!

What the new Overland car and its remarkable improvements cost to create we shall never know. But we do know that it cost $6,000,000 to get ready to incorporate them into the new Overland car, and that the Overland car was a great car before these improvements were initiated and adopted.

So it seems a fair conclusion: That an institution that will voluntarily upset the ramifications of one of the greatest automobile manufacturing plants in the world, in order to reduce the gasoline bills of Overland owners, justifies the past, the future, and the immediate confidence of the American people.

Ninety-seven cities recently reported ninety-seven Overland Sedans as averaging 25.2 miles per gallon of gas

LIEUT. COL. ROOSEVELT'S BREAK

Lieut. Colonel Roosevelt has made himself rather ridiculous by a palpable mis-statement in a speech in Maine in which he said that "it was the republican party that fought the war." "There was," he said, "not a male representative of the close official family of the national democratic administration who to the best of my knowledge, was during the war, within the range of a gun fired by the enemy. We can at least give them this credit. They did not use their influence to be sent where the danger was greatest."

This charge has the boldness of the speaker's father, but it lacks the colonel's accuracy. It is not at all complimentary to the 2,000,000 democrats who fought in the war, accepting whatever duties were assigned them, to be told that the war was fought by republicans.

It is an extremely bad taste for Lieut. Roosevelt to make any political distinction among the soldiers who served in the world war. In the service they were loyal Americans, neither republicans nor democrats, and we venture to say that if it came to a count, now that the issue has been raised, the democrats would greatly outnumber the republicans; and despite the assertion of this young lieutenant, they took no second place when it came to a fight.

Now as to the actual facts, it happens that not many of the cabinet officials are blessed with large families; but their sons and daughters in each and every case did their full duty.

Secretary McAdoo has three sons and every one of them volunteered and served in the navy, subject to the dangers of the lurking submarines. Postmaster General Burleson has no sons, but his son-in-law, although having three children under eight years of age, entered the aviation service and was about to sail for France when the armistice was declared. His sister, a widow, furnished two sons who served in the trenches and one made the supreme sacrifice.

Secretary Daniels' son was rejected in the draft owing to defective eyesight, but at his father's request, this objection was waived and the boy entered the Marine Corps, recognized as one of the most dangerous branches of the service.

Secretary Lane's son was in the air service; Secretary Houston has one son who although under age, left Harvard, enlisted and became an aviator. Secretary Redfield's only son served in the navy all through the war. Secretary Wilson has three sons, all of whom enlisted as privates, two of them serving in France with their divisions, and both won commissions for meritorious service. Secretary of War Baker has no children over ten years of age, but six times he crossed the ocean on important business, passing through the lanes infested with submarines. It is plain, therefore, that Lieut. Roosevelt has made a gross mis-statement, which is a great injustice to the officials concerned and to democrats in general. If the republicans fought the war, there would be a record of embalmed beef distemper in camps, round robins and other evidences of mismanagement.

THE TRADE BALANCE

A few pessimistic souls saw in the recently published report of American foreign trade something to be frightened at. But what they saw was nothing other than a declining toward normal of the long-sided trade balance. Nothing to be frightened at. Really, it is something to welcome.

Unless foreign nations can pay their American debts they travel to the poorhouse via bankruptcy. They cannot pay these debts in gold; not enough gold.

They can pay in goods, things to eat, to wear, to use in other ways. This is what they are doing.

Before the war the United States was paying Europe something like a half billion dollars a year. This went over largely in the form of food, oil, cotton. It paid interest on European capital invested here. The war rearranged that. European capital withdrew from American investments, except for munitions of war. American capital went to Europe. Now Europe must pay America half billion dollars a year as interest charge. Europe cannot pay in gold; she must pay in goods.

Europe is paying. That is why imports into the United States increased during the fiscal year ending June 30. It is true that other continents, Asia, South America, Australia and Africa sold more to America than they purchased. The trade balance is in their favor. This is partly accounted for by the fact that Europe doesn't make all her payments to America directly. She sells manufactured goods to South America, and South America sends coffee to America, and in this roundabout way Europe pays United States debts. Probably four before Europe gets her American bills settled the United States will have evened her trade with the others.

The billion dollars spent for coffee, rubber and leather materials of South America, Africa, Australia, etc., is balanced by increased exports from America to those continents. The trade balance now is a billion dollars in their favor.

The time to do isn't to worry over the decreasing trade balance with Europe. It is to think about increasing exports to other continents, particularly South America. This can be aided by the investment of American capital in the development of South America, Asia and Africa.

COLLEGE EXTENSION COURSES

In addition to the courses of study provided in our local schools, the College Extension Department offers many opportunities to students who wish to take up special branches to enable them to reach higher positions. Already the state board has arranged for a number of classes to be conducted in Lowell during the winter by personal instruction, while correspondence courses are open at all times to those who wish to take them. There are nearly one hundred courses open in all and wherever twenty students agree to take up any course, the department will secure a teacher to meet them at least once a week. The highest fee for any course is $2 and for most of the courses $1. The courses thus far decided upon for Lowell are:

English Composition, Advanced, American Citizenship, Gasoline Automobiles, Principles of Accounting, Elementary Accounting, Oral English, Public Speaking, Practical Applied Mathematics, English for Business.

A teacher will be provided for any other course in which twenty students register. Thus there are great other courses in which twenty students by which young men can improve their chances of promotion in their respective occupations. Any information required relative to this department of public education may be obtained by addressing James A. Moyer, College Extension Department, State House, Boston.

CONCORD RIVER A MENACE

It is understood that the state board of health has jurisdiction over the Concord river so far as sanitation is concerned. If any member or representative of that body should inspect the Concord below the tannery of the American Hide and Leather company, when the water is low after the mills shut down, he would find it to be a veritable plague spot, a menace to public health, worse than an open sewer, because the contents of many sewers appear to be choking the bed of the river to a depth of several feet. The river at this point, and down to the Middlesex yard should be dredged. It may be asked what would be done with the rotten stuff removed. The farmers of surrounding towns would undoubtedly be glad to cart it away or even to pay for it as fertilizer for their farms.

This section of the river has been a veritable nuisance in the summer time for several years past. The filth is forming islands in the river above and below the Rogers street bridge. The state board that tolerates this menace to the public health should have a very serious responsibility.

When the auditorium shall have been completed, we do not believe the people will tolerate the noisome odors carried down to its doors from above Rogers street, on the filth laden waters of the lower Concord.

According to republican custom, Channing Cox, now lieutenant governor, is to have the governorship handed to him on a silver platter so far as the republicans are concerned. Speaker Warner is seeking the nomination for lieutenant governor, feeling that if he gets it, and happens to be elected, it will insure his subsequent election as governor, unless the democratic candidate should be chosen. It remains for the democrats to upset this custom and leave the contest for governor and lieutenant governor open to all comers without discrimination.

It looks as if it were useless for labor organizations to fight for collective bargaining if they cannot induce their members to abide by the agreements entered into by the head officials. The 35,000 miners who refused to return to work in the anthracite coal fields, have made a farce of collective bargaining with President Wilson. Their insurgency will not only fail of its purpose but will injure the cause of organized labor.

The Rev. Mr. Kopelman, of New Jersey, advocates bathing suits that will cover the entire body. The reception tendered him by the bathers at Morristown, N. J., offered rather tangible proofs that there, at least, his crusade is unpopular. The arguments with which he was met took the form of over-ripe tomatoes, which, if rapidly projected and in generous numbers, are rather difficult to refute.

Today inaugurates in this state, the first application of universal suffrage at the polls. The women are now clothed with the same political rights as are the men, owing to the short time allowed for registration, the number of women voters will be comparatively few but on November 2, their real power will be shown for the first time.

Let every registered voter get to the polls and vote in the primaries. If the best candidates are not nominated at the primaries, they cannot be voted for on election day. Therefore to prevent such fundamental mistakes let every voter go to the polls and register his or her choice. Those who have the primary work to do is and criticize afterwards are political snobs.

Prof. A. Britten, of Illinois, in charging that the democratic party was receiving funds from British sources and has been convicted of a false statement on examination before the senate committee at Chicago. That is more than can be said of any of the democratic leaders examined.

We have heard of bandits loading up a train, but never before heard of their loading a train. Yet that is the story that comes from Chicago.

The vacation season is over and now the political pot will proceed to boil.

Man-Made Laws

The local woman who waxed indignant when told that she could not vote for Harding and Coolidge at the primaries and declared that no man could dictate to her how she would vote was not in the least mollified when it was explained to her that Harding and Coolidge had already been nominated and expressed her disgust thusly: "Man-made laws make me sick. We women will soon change them all and will hold all the offices, too."—Lawrence Telegram.

Crossing the Rubicon

Julius Caesar was another guy who, like Nero, couldn't stand for the status quo of the law. One morning he grabbed the telephone and called up a friend in Rome. "Say, Maise," he murmured, after spending three-quarters of an hour getting central to pay some attention to him, "I'm coming right down from Gaul. How about a little musical comedy tomorrow eve?" "I'm sorry," Maise replied, hurrying like a cat down to her dressmaker's, to find out whether skirts had shrunk any in the latest style books from Paris. It was to keep that date that J. Caesar made his famous jump across the Rubicon. And, say, folks, that old wooden bridge nearly caused him to disappear into Maise. But J. C. was no slouch about correcting mistakes. He saw that it was a bad bet, and that was why he put up a dandy new suspension bridge there. Now anybody can cross the Rubicon without scaring the dickens out of every Roman.

A Good Loss

Though Mr. Panzi "stung" him for $100 there is a resident of Franklin, N. H., who can't understand how they can persecute him. The following taken from the Manchester Union describes the situation as it appears to him: "Franklin has a number of speculators who subscribed for the Panzi notes, according to well founded rumors. One man who possesses a note does not expect the courts will punish the 'financial wizard' as he was familiarly called a few weeks ago. This man says that Panzi did not steal his money, but he struggled for a chance to buy one of the notes and remained in line six hours before he could get up to the counter to deposit his $100 cash and take the note, which promised to pay 50 per cent. in 45 days. There is nothing incriminating in the wording of the note and this investor although not knowledgeable himself of anything against Panzi, is not anything against Panzi to merit criminal prosecution."

(Copyright, 1920, N.E.A.) Perhaps you are a monarch and your sword is bared against some rival over-lord. You know not that I am, nor do I care. Whether you live or die, yet I must share the sweat and blood, the triumph or defeat. The world is so compact and so complete.

Mayhap you are a slave, whose swart face is never seen in any market place, And yet the product of your hardy thews affects the terms of all I sell, or use. Borne by the desert's pack, or ocean's gale, Your little ounce decides my trembling scale.

Perhaps you are a poet and you dwell in some forgotten hermit's buried cell, Yet some chance passer-by shall heed your song, And every breeze shall blow your word along. Until all human hearts shall beat with yours, As long as red blood runs and love endures.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Many ex-service men of this city are receiving vocational training at the expense of the government at schools and shops within the city limits. It was a surprise to me to learn through the local office of the Red Cross that so many former service men, more or less disabled in the war, are attending the commercial schools in this city and that they will resume their studies when these schools open for the fall term. I have also discovered that a number of disabled veterans are learning trades in garages and machine shops. It is a fact, however, that some of these men require considerable persuasion to induce them to sign, because they did not realize the advantages of the training thus freely offered. Somehow, the belief has spread abroad among service men that when they sign for vocational training, they lose their compensation under the bureau of war risk insurance, but that is not so.

A man declared eligible to receive compensation from the bureau was also the privilege of taking up vocational training. The only difference is in the department which makes the payment. A disabled veteran receiving vocational training receives his compensation through the federal board for vocational training and not through the war risk department.

From the tenth floor of The Sun building I can see a business block the roof of which is to be repaired with tar and gravel. Around the roof is on the outer edge of the roof a row of boxes of gravel. I suppose from my point of view they seem to be so near the outer edge that I would not care to walk close to the building lest one of them should come down on my head. People on the street, however, cannot see them and it's an old saying that you don't know what's going to harm you, but I don't believe that.

The state highway commission is issuing yearly a list of all automobile registrations of the state, which is later bound in book form and sent to police stations throughout the commonwealth, but strange to say there is no available locality of motorist's registrations. It is an automobile accident to stop as he is ordered to by law, his registration number is taken and then his identity is determined by consulting the registration book at the station. But if a motorcycle gets into a mishap and the operator fails to stop, in order to get his name and address, one has to wait to the highway commission. It seems to me that the registration of motorcycles should be included in the same book with automobile registrations.

MATRIMONIAL

A pretty wedding took place Sunday afternoon when Mr. Edward Couture and Miss Rose Letendre, two well known young residents of this city, were united in the bonds of matrimony, the ceremony being performed at Notre Dame de Lourdes church at 3 o'clock by the acting pastor, Rev. J. B. A. Barrette, O.M.I. The bride was handsomely attired in white georgette crepe and wore a tulle veil caught up with a wreath of bridal roses and pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and sweet peas. The witnesses were Messrs. Henry Couture and Felix Letendre, fathers of the groom and bride respectively. At the close of the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the groom's parents, 1 Clark street, where a beautiful wedding dinner was served to about 100 guests. Later a reception was held during which musical and literary numbers were given. Attending the festivities were guests from Wallingford, Charlestown, Boston, Haverhill, Worcester and Canada. Mr. and Mrs. Couture, who were the recipients of numerous wedding gifts left on the 9:15 o'clock train for Montreal, Quebec, Cap de la Madeleine and other cities in the Dominion and upon their return in three weeks they will make their home at 239 Steadman street.

Friday evening, the bride, who is a popular member of the Abenakis club, was tendered a reception at 1 Clark street by the members of the organization and was showered with numerous gifts including silverware, linen, cut glass and furniture. In the course of the evening a buffet luncheon was served and entertainment numbers were given by Miss Donaldina Chapdelaine, Miss Aldea Letendre, Miss Eva Letendre, Miss Beatrice Couture, Miss Rosalinda Letendre, Miss Eva Richard. A feature of the program was mock marriage in which participated Miss Rosalinda Letendre, Mr. Edward Couture and Miss Aldea Letendre.

HELD OUTING AT REVERE BEACH

Twenty-five automobile trucks conveyed the members of the local councils of the Ancient Order of Hibernians to Revere beach Sunday forenoon, the occasion being the first annual outing under the auspices of the order. The automobile parade headed by the Irish Volunteer Fire and Drum corps left headquarters in Middle street and went through Central and Gorham streets on its way to Boston via Billerica.

Upon reaching the beach, dinner was served at the Revere house and the afternoon was spent in bathing and sports, the party returning to Lowell at 9 o'clock. Those responsible for the success of the event were as follows: President Michael J. Monahan, Secretary Catherine Gaffney and Treasurer Mary McKenney.

THE IRISH PICKETS

Editor Sun: As a sympathizer with the Irish cause and one who earnestly hopes to see it borne on to final success, I wish to ask who is behind the women pickets whose conduct in the United States senate and before the British embassy as well as in other instances since then, has been so ridiculous? Who is behind them? All the Irish organizations have disclaimed connection with this picket business. Who is paying their bills?

Can you inform me, Mr. Editor?

Yours truly,

W. J. F.

In reply to the above we may say that when the Irish pickets first appeared in Washington, The Sun correspondent at the capital investigated their in a general way and found that there was not a single Irish woman among them. The leaders were members of an organization of actresses. Later, however, they have lured some Irish women to join them.

DROWNED WHILE BATHING

Lowell Young Man Loses Life at Crystal Lake—Body Recovered Sunday Afternoon. Edward Poisson, aged 15 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Poisson, of 110 Powell street was drowned while bathing at Crystal Lake, North Chelmsford Sunday afternoon. The body was recovered later and removed to the home of the parents by Undertaker Joseph Albert. The young man attended a family picnic on the shores of the lake yesterday afternoon and with several others he went to bathing near the ice houses. Shortly after he entered the water he was seized with cramps, and although he shouted for help, those who rushed to his rescue arrived too late to render assistance, for immediately after shouting he disappeared beneath the surface. The body was soon recovered, for the water at that point is but eight feet deep, and Dr. Fred Varney was summoned, but his efforts to resuscitate the lad were fruitless. Deceased leaves his parents, two sisters, Eva and Anna, and three brothers, Clarence, Eugene and Arthur.

VITAMINES NECESSARY FOOD ELEMENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Attention—every housewife in the land! What are vitamins? Do you know? Do you know they are an element of food which is absolutely necessary to life—the importance of which is now emphasized by recent experiments? Time was when we heard on every hand that the elements absolutely necessary in our food were proteins, fats, carbohydrates and mineral salts to life, but when pasteurized the heating process kills some of the vitamins, and they must be supplied from another source. "The first type of vitamins are known as water-soluble vitamins," explains Dr. Johns. "They are necessary to get growth from food. An animal or person will die of beri-beri, a disease of the nervous system, without them. A pigeon with beri-beri becomes paralyzed and cannot move and its head bends back. When it is in this condition we can give it food rich in water-soluble vitamins and it will soon recover. These kind of vitamins are found in all seeds in green plants, milk, eggs and yeast. By seeds we mean beans, nuts and the cereal grains.

Prevent Disease of Eyes

"The second type are fat-soluble vitamins. They prevent a disease of the eyes, known as xerophthalmia. These vitamins also have some effect in promoting growth. They are found in butter, eggs, milk, and in the glandular organs of the animal, such as the heart, kidneys and liver. They are found to some extent in the other fats. Cattle and other non-meat-eating animals get the necessary fat-soluble vitamins from green vegetables. They are found to slight extent in some seeds, but none in meat. Without these vitamins the eyes get sore and the sight is lost. If the disease is not too far advanced a cure can be brought about quickly by supplying the necessary vitamins. During the recent war there was considerable experience with this disease where children were deprived of milk. "The third type are anti-scurvy vitamins. They prevent scurvy, a disease of the joints of the bones. In animals or children the joints swell up and the affected one cannot walk and soon dies. Babies fed on pasteurized milk alone will contract it. The corrective is orange juice. These vitamins are found in oranges, grapefruit, lemons and other citrus fruits, green vegetables, particularly spinach and lettuce and all fresh fruits and eggs and milk. Uncle Sam had to guard against this disease on ships when too much dried fruits were fed."

Moore Declares Senate Probers "Not Seeking Best Evidence" to Prove Cox Charges

COX MANAGER A WITNESS

Moore Says Other Men Better Able to Tell of Fund Than
He or Cox

Asks Why Col. Thompson and "Paid Workers" Were Not Called

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The senatorial committee investigating campaign expenditures "is not seeking the best evidence" to prove Gov. Cox's charges against the republican party, Edmund H. Moore, of Youngstown, Ohio, the governor's personal representative, told the committee on the stand today.

Moore told Senator Kenyon there were men better to tell of the republican plans than either he or Gov. Cox and asked by Col. William Boyce Thompson, of New York, chairman of the republican ways and means committee, and "the 50 men of the paid organization" were not called.

Governor Cox has no evidence in support of his charges outside of what Moore brought to Chicago with him, the witness said. As he spoke he unfolded a massive brief case and took out a stack of papers that apparently numbered several hundred sheets.

Gov. Cox sent him to Chicago, Mr. Moore said, to "give the committee the list from whom the senators could get the information to support the governor's charges." He mentioned Harry M. Blair, first assistant to Fred W. Upham, republican national treasurer, and several other employees of Upham's office.

Signs of friction developed when Chairman Kenyon questioned Mr. Moore about an interview he gave newspaper correspondents last Thursday when he appeared to testify, but was not called.

"The chairman asked Mr. Moore if he had said that the committee was afraid to call him to the stand and if he had said the committee was not seeking the evidence to prove Governor Cox's charges."

"I did not," the witness exclaimed. "You don't need to get angry," Senator Kenyon said.

"I am not getting angry. What I said was that you were not seeking the best evidence. And I say it again. You are not."

"Did you say: 'If the committee wants to, it can get the men here who will prove the falsity or truth of Gov. Cox's charges in 48 hours?'" asked Senator Kenyon.

"Well, if I did not say it then, I say it now," responded Mr. Moore.

"A battalion of moppers-up" is also a part of the republican finance organization, according to Mr. Moore. He said these men went in after the organization headed by Col. Thompson had collected from "the cream list."

BOXING IS LEGALIZED HERE

Municipal Council Votes to Accept Provisions of Legislative Act

Commissioner Murphy Presents $20,000 Loan Order
for Sewer Construction

Boxing was legalized as a sport in Lowell by action of the municipal council this morning in accepting the provisions of the act passed by the last legislature placing boxing exhibitions under the control of a commission acting as a part of the state department of public safety.

The act contains detailed rules for the licensing and regulations of public boxing exhibitions. It limits such exhibitions to ten rounds. The matches are to be conducted under direction of boxing commission appointees. The fees for licenses are to be paid to the state and any portion of the sum thus obtained that is not used by the commission in paying its expenses is to be returned to the city at the expiration of each fiscal year.

The action of the municipal council is binding only until the next city election when the question of accepting the legislative act is to be placed upon the ballots. If accepted or rejected at that time it can be brought before the electorate for action at any future city election upon petition of not less than 10 per cent. of the registered voters.

$20,000 Loan Order
An order authorizing the loan of $20,000 to be used for sewer construction was presented by Commissioner Murphy.

Mr. Murphy said that petitions for $15,000 worth of sewers had already been acted upon, and that other petitions had been received that had not.

MACSWINEY WEAKER
Prisoner Suffering Intense
Pain in Left Side of Abdomen and Heart

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, who has been on a hunger strike since Aug. 12, was reported appreciably weaker this morning, but conscious and able to speak.

Father Dominic, private chaplain to MacSwiney, said the prisoner was suffering intense pain in the left side of his abdomen and heart.

Regarding the statement made by Premier Lloyd George, indicating that the murders of police in Ireland would be released if guarantees were given that the murders of police in Ireland would cease, Father Dominic said the mayor had no authority to make any promise for the cessation of murders in Ireland, as he was only an individual.

"If the government is satisfied that the murders are taking place," Father Dominic added, "why doesn't it capture the murderers and execute them?"

Local Fruit Dealers Charged
With Wilfully Receiving
Stolen Goods

From Camp Devens—Government Property Stolen Is Valued at $30,000

Arisdakis Chakarian, aged 33, a fruit dealer of Middlesex street, arrested on a warrant Saturday evening for wilfully receiving stolen goods, the property of the United States government, including a number of army blankets and bed sheets from the army stores department at Camp Devens, was arraigned in police court this morning.

His counsel was granted a continuance for trial on September 21 under bail of $1000 on which the defendant was released Saturday evening.

Peter Echmalian, aged 35, the other fruit dealer of South street, alleged to have been connected with the traffic in army blankets by receiving and buying them from Private Moonaw, who is said to have stolen them from the camp, was also granted continuance for trial on September 21. His bail was placed at $300. Private Floyd Moonaw, aged 34, of the 13th infantry at Camp Devens, was booked with larceny Saturday night and is awaiting disposition by the military authorities.

The arrests were made in connection with the theft of blankets and bed sheets from Camp Devens.

The charge of larceny made against Moonaw involves blankets and bed sheets valued at $1500 dollars and also two artillery instruments, the police say, which are valued at $300 and which he sold for $5.

A new angle of the affair was revealed this morning when the police stated that just as soon as the military authorities took action on the Moonaw case, a number of jitney drivers were charged with the same.

HOLIDAY OBSERVANCE
Street Parade and Mass Meet-

Celebration

Union labor observed its annual holiday in Lowell yesterday with a street parade of merit and a mass meeting on the South common oval in the evening, featured by addresses by Mayor Perry D. Thompson, Rev. Daniel J. Keleher, Ph.D., pastor of St. Peter's church, and Francis A. Warnock, president of the Lowell Trades & Labor council, James T. Moriarty, president of the Boston city council, was scheduled to speak, but didn't arrive on time.

Labor's ranks are not thinning by any means, and while the morning parade was much shorter comparatively than others of recent years, it was due mainly to the present uncertain textile situation and the fact that hundreds of trades and craftsmen had

The closing event of the Labor Day celebration was held on the South common at 8 o'clock in the evening when an assembly of from 5000 to 6000 people gathered about the band stand to enjoy the inspiring music by the Lowell Military band and to hear the addresses of the various speakers.

Promptly at the appointed time President Francis A. Warnock of the Trades and Labor council called to order and congratulated the assembly upon the success of the day's observance, stating that although the number in line in the parade was not as great as expected, owing to the fact that some of the mills are shut down and that many of the members are on vacation or working out of town, it nevertheless was a creditable and thoroughly representative demonstration of the organized labor forces of the city.

He assured his audience that organized labor is not going backward in Lowell, that its aim is to move still upward and onward to better and more ideal conditions for the people who toil. In conclusion Chairman Warnock introduced Rev. D. J. Keleher, Ph.D., pastor of St. Peter's church, remarking that men of the reverend gentleman's profession are usually so busy doing good that they seldom address labor meetings.

Rev. Dr. Keleher was cordially received. He said that if he had not addressed such meetings in the past, it was because he had not been asked. He thanked the chairman for his kind words and said if there is anybody who is intimate with the conditions of the working people, it is the Catholic priest, because he is of the people and for the people. He is not merely a "sky pilot" leading people along the paths of righteousness, but he must also have due concern for their well-being, their prosperity and the happiness of their lives. It is, therefore, a fact that no class of men makes a closer study of economic conditions than do Catholic priests.

The speaker then complimented organized labor upon the era of industrial peace which the people of Lowell have enjoyed. Here we have had no great industrial conflicts such as have been waged in other cities. True we have had some minor contests but no great outbreak between capital and labor.

This, the speaker said, is due to the wise and conservative leadership of organized labor and to the

POLAND APPEALS TO THE LEAGUE

Requests Its Mediation in the Polish-Lithuanian Dispute

Declares An Unprovoked Attack Made on Poles by Lithuanian Forces

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Polish government has addressed an appeal to the League of Nations requesting its mediation in the Polish-Lithuanian dispute. Unless an improvement occurs in the situation, Poland will be compelled to declare war on Lithuania, the appeal states.

The communication declares an unprovoked attack had been made on the Polish troops by Lithuanian forces. The League of Nations is now considering the appeal.

WARSAW, Sept. 6.—Poland is ready to submit her dispute with Lithuania over the frontier between the two countries to arbitration by the League of Nations, it was announced here today.

Monday's official statement reports additional attacks by the Lithuanians which the Poles repelled. The communication says:

"Our detachments continue successfully to repel attacks by Lithuanian troops. A scouting company of two officers and 200 soldiers, with six machine guns, which penetrated behind our rear, was captured."

George H. Upton is secretary of the committee.

A meeting of directors of the chamber is to be held next Monday at noon.

At 4:30 P. M. Monday the parks and playgrounds committee will hold a meeting.

Secretary Wells of the chamber of commerce has received a letter from the director of the census bureau stating that figures recently published in this city purporting to give an authentic estimate of the number of English and foreign-speaking residents in Lowell were not furnished by this bureau and that no census figures, aside from those dealing with the aggregate population of places, have been made public. In the figures that were published the city was set down as having an estimated Greek-speaking population of 4532 in 1920 as against 4144 in 1910.

POLLS OPEN HERE FOR STATE PRIMARIES

The state primaries are on in full swing, but at the time of going to press this afternoon no great rush at any of the local polls had been reported. Although there are numerous contests for some of the various state positions the enthusiasm of the local voters has not been brought to the "fever" point, so that a light vote is expected here.

For the first time in the history of the commonwealth the members of the fair sex are today being given an opportunity to cast their ballot at a state primary and various reports come from the different precincts. Some reported many women voters, while others reported that only a few women had voted. At precinct 1 of ward 1, where close to 100 women's names appear on the check list, not one had called for a ballot an hour after the polls opened, while at that time only 20 men had cast their ballot.

The polls in Lowell opened at 12 o'clock this noon and will close at 9 o'clock this evening, so it is expected that the bulk of the voting will be done this evening between the hours of five and nine. The consensus of opinion throughout the city, however, seems to be that an exceptionally small vote will be cast owing to the fact that there are but a few real voters and also to the fact that a great many people are out of town on their annual vacation. The primaries this year being two weeks earlier than usual.

The local contests are in the 8th senatorial district, where Messrs. Frank H. Putnam and E. Gaston Campbell are competing each other on the republican ticket. On the democratic side there is only one candidate, Hon. John T. Sparks. In the 15th Middlesex representative district, where three men are to be nominated there are five aspirants on the republican ticket, Messrs. Henry Achin, Victor P. Jewett and Adolard Berard, the present incumbent, and Clinton P. Tuttle, and William D. Blanchard. There are no candidates on the democratic ticket.

A lively fight is being staged in the 14th Middlesex representative district, where five democrats are disputing the honors. The candidates are Owen Brennan and Charles H. Slowe, who are up for renomination; Frank McManis, Cornelius Desmond and Patrick Hayes. The republican candidates in that district are Harry W. Leavitt. In the 16th representative district, which is entitled to one representative, there is a warm contest between Thomas J. Corbett, the present incumbent; Dennis Donohoe and Paul J. McCaffrey, all democrats. The republicans have no candidates in that district.

The above are about the only positions for which there are lively contests and it remains to be seen how many votes the various candidates will be able to draw to the polls.

Inasmuch as the polls will not close until 9 o'clock this evening it is not expected that the first returns will reach city hall before 10 o'clock. For information concerning the results of the primaries tonight, call 3717, city hall.

HUNTING CORN BORER
Federal Officers Stop Many Autoists on Way to New Hampshire

If you happened to motor into New Hampshire over the holiday you were in all probability held up at the line where able-bodied men ransacked your auto in search of fruit and vegetables. They were "corn borer" inspectors in the employ of the federal government and, according to all accounts, they were very thorough. The inspections proved a great source of annoyance to autoists and a considerable quantity of vegetables and flowers were seized by the officers. If vegetables and flowers did not show any symptoms of the presence of the corn borer they were allowed to go through. One of the autoists held up and deprived of a beautiful bouquet was the wife of a New Hampshire state official. Some of the autoists thought the officers were looking for liquor and quite a few made ready to hand out bottles. One woman passenger displayed a pint of whiskey concealed in her stocking. But the inspectors assured them that they were not interested in the liquor and that the government's hunt; that they were corn borer hunters, pure and simple. The same officers, however, can tell some funny stories about bribes offered by autoists with liquor on board.

Bay State Voters Ballot to Select State and Congress-
sional Tickets

Several Lively Fights On—
Great Interest in Women's Part in Primary

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Massachusetts voters balloted today to select the republican and democratic state and congressional tickets that will be voted on at the November election. The primary was the first in this state in which women participated and they had registered in the approximate proportion of one woman for every four registered men.

One Woman Candidate
One woman was assured of a place on the democratic state ticket. Mrs. Alice E. Cram of Boston being unopposed for the nomination for auditor. A majority of the contests were for places on the republican state ticket. The contest for the democratic gubernatorial nomination was the only one of that party's state ticket. Four republicans and two democratic congressmen were opposed for renomination.

Lieut. Governor Channing H. Cox was unopposed for the republican nomination for governor. He has been twice elected to his present office.

400 PLANTS SEIZED BY ITALIAN WORKERS

ROME, Sept. 7.—Government officials will open negotiations with the General Industrial conference at Milan on Thursday, with a view to solving the problem presented by the seizure by workers of metal factories throughout Italy. The socialist group in the Italian parliament will hold a meeting with the governing committee of the General Workers' Confederation on Friday, and it is expected that at this gathering a policy will be adopted by the workers relative to the present anomalous condition of Italian industry.

It is estimated that four hundred of the largest metal works in Italy have been occupied by mechanics and workers, and the movement is still expanding, threatening to extend to the extreme southern end of the peninsula. Elaborate steps have been taken by the government to preserve order during the period when a general offensive against all industries is threatened.

RECRUITING TRAIN
ARRIVES IN LOWELL

The first recruiting train of the Boston coast defense, including 30 men and the 10th C.A.C. band, entered the city shortly before noon today and encamped at the South common for a 10 day recruiting drive. The outfit made the trip over the New England coast where it has been stationed in the interest of enlisting young men for the coast guard defense of New England. Col. James F. Howell, commander of Boston's coast defense, Major William M. Widman, commander of the recruiting train and Chaplain Harry C. Fraser, publicity manager, accompany the party. The advance guard of the outfit was scheduled to arrive in this city last Wednesday and the rest of the party had planned to pitch their tents yesterday.

The party is in possession of a very fine collection of world war trophies, including German guns, anti-aircraft gun, mines, machine guns and so on. They have also a million candle-power searchlight and a moving picture outfit. Special efforts will be made to interest high school graduates in the opportunities offered by the C.A.C. to join the Boston coast defense and attend school to prepare for entrance to the West Point military academy.

Drive an APPERSON "JACK RABBIT"

Favors Self-Determination for Ireland—Drives Race Horse at Fair Grounds.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 7.—Gov. Cox worked a full holiday yesterday on what he termed his "Pilgrimage to the Pacific Coast." He made several speeches, viewed exhibits at the Minnesota State fair, where he drove a race horse around the track, attended receptions and last night went to Minneapolis for another address.

At the fair grounds Gov. Cox addressed what was said to be a record crowd for Minnesota and spoke to a large gathering later at the auditorium.

A statement that he favored application of the principle of self-determination to Ireland was made by the candidate in response to a question from a man in his audience.

"If elected president," he was asked, "will you recognize the Irish republic?"

"I am in favor of the application of the principle of self-determination in Japan, in China, in Persia, in Turkey, and in Ireland," was the governor's reply after several passages with his inquisitor and a preliminary statement.

"This is No Pink Tea Fight"

The reply drew loud applause and ended interruptions. The governor preceded his reply with a statement that the armistice was based on President Wilson's "fourteen points," including that of self-determination, and that Article 10 would protect weak nations from external aggression.

The league was advocated by the governor to his auditorium audience as a pre-requisite to world readjustment.

Gov. Cox declared that "big business" was trying to elect the candidate of the senatorial oligarchy. Commenting on local newspaper criticisms, he said:

"Who is it that's squealing? The same crowd that's fought a sick man on a sick bed in the White House for a year. This is not going to be a pink tea fight nor a pillow contest."

The governor accused the "senatorial oligarchy" of having "stolen" the republican organization and appealed to the rank and file of the republicans.

For Itching Eczema, Old Sores and Piles

"I guarantee my ointment," says Peterson of Buffalo, "to cure eczema, to stop the itching at once and any reliable druggist will cheerfully refund your money if PETERSON'S OINTMENT doesn't do everything I say it will do."

William A. Carley of Franklin, N. Y., is surely a wise man. He writes: "I used PETERSON'S OINTMENT on a little boy suffering terribly with eczema. It did the work."

Then there is Alex Louttel, a brave fireman of Buffalo, who is glad to write as follows: "I had an old sore on my leg for many years. The best doctors failed. PETERSON'S OINTMENT entirely healed the sore quickly."

And over in Canada comes a letter from A. Blockley, stating: "The best thing I ever hit for itching piles is PETERSON'S OINTMENT. A big box for 35 cents. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y."

together with independents, to vote their "intelligence."

Cheered As He Drives at Top Speed

The governor was welcomed with frequent applause during his activities here, and also when he swept around the track in a sulky guided by Peter Nash, a thoroughbred, 2:01 1/2 chestnut pacer, in a workout. The governor swept down the home stretch at top speed, while cheers rang from the grandstand.

At the state fair, Governor Cox was presented the picture "October Day in Minnesota," by Knute Helder of Minneapolis, which won the gold medal. Accepting the picture Governor Cox said:

"I accept the picture with the condition that it will be established in the East room of the White House."

League As Aid to Labor

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 7.—Labor and agriculture were subjects discussed at the Minnesota state fair grounds here yesterday by Gov. Cox. He declared that interests of both would be served by success of the League of Nations.

Measures to increase farm production acreage and labor supply were advocated by the democratic presidential nominee and he declared again for collective bargaining by labor. He also pledged himself specifically to increase salaries for postal employees.

Referring to the League of Nations Gov. Cox said:

"Millions of men, women and children in devastated regions of Europe are literally starving to death when America has the ability and resources to provide for them all. But this provision can be made only when reconstruction of the world has been undertaken under a definite plan. Until peace is accomplished, little headway can be made."

"Waste and extravagance must continue until by the ratification of our Treaty of Peace we and the other countries of the world know definitely where we stand."

Turning to the labor question, Gov. Cox continued: "I think that the solution is in the dawn of a new day, when the human soul and the human body shall count for more than the sordid dollar. Industrial disputes cannot be avoided, but industrial disputes can be prevented from menacing the welfare of the nation when both parties to the disputes can be made to understand that government is fair and that neither one nor the other may gain an advantage."

"Labor day came to be as one of the noblest of the road of progress. But for progress labor day could not have been. Reactionists would not recognize it. They consist primarily of the holders of privilege conferred by laws."

"Labor should have the right to organize and through representatives of their own choosing negotiate collective bargaining. Care must be exercised that government at no time be oppressive in maintaining the laws of the land."

I believe the government should provide for proper investigation. In all cases with provision for the filing of the facts without prejudice, so that the public may have full information. The right to free speech and free press and the right of orderly assembly, guaranteed by the constitution, must never be infringed.

"To long have we urged the down-trodden of other lands to come to us as laborers without giving a thought to their proper absorption in the melting pot. Americanization must be seriously undertaken by the government, with insistence upon full co-operation by the employers of this labor."

Gov. Cox reiterated his advocacy of federal reclamation aid, agricultural extension and homestead. He said federal regulation of cold storage would "break the circle of profiteering."

Red Pills and Female Weakness

When a woman complains of persistent pains and discomforts, one is safe in saying that she is troubled with a malady peculiar to her sex, and that she suffers from that disease, or agglomeration of diseases, which is generally called Female Weakness.

This disease is more frequently met in married women and women at the change of life, but still it also attacks young girls who have to work for their living. Female Weakness may be caused by various reasons, such as exposure to cold, lack of proper care, hard work, lack of nutrition, etc., but the main cause, and one which never fails to bring that disease on as a result, is Anaemia.

Anaemia will thin the blood, and lower the strength of its victim, and as soon as a woman becomes anaemic, the various symptoms which are usually known as female weakness will make their appearance. These symptoms are pains in the stomach, kidneys, often headaches, and always a tired feeling, and seldom good digestion, always bearing-down pains, irregular and painful periods.

Walking, even the fact of remaining standing for a certain time, and the least exertion, will increase the symptoms. If these symptoms are let alone, and if nothing is done by the patient, they will rapidly increase, and are apt to bring on more serious trouble.

The best treatment for Anaemia, and consequently for female weakness, which as a rule accompanies Anaemia, are Red Pills for Pale and Weak Women, and all women ought to start taking them at the first symptoms of weakness, and not wait until their trouble becomes chronic, their health broken, and their constitution debilitated by nervous symptoms, stomach trouble, and irregularities of all kinds.

RED PILLS are sold in boxes of 50 pills, 50 cents a box, six boxes $2.50. If they are not at your merchant's, they will be sent to you by mail on receipt of price. Franco-American Chemical Company, Limited, 212 Milk Street, Boston, Mass. 102-74.

ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP EDITOR THWARTED

N.E.A. Staff Special

HOUSTON, Sept. 7.—A sensational attempt by Texas national guard officers to kidnap G. V. Saunders, editor of the Houston Press, and take him to Galveston for trial before a court-martial for his vigorous criticism of the way state troops have been trying to break a strike of coastwise dockworkers was repulsed at the Houston Country club the other night.

Guard officers ordered to bring Saunders within the jurisdiction of Brig. Gen. Jake Wolters, who commands troops maintaining martial law in Galveston, did not march boldly up to the office of The Houston Press and arrest him. They came quietly at night dressed in mufti. They visited his home in a quiet residential district.

Saunders was not at home. This fact and the further fact that these officers, acting outside their martial law zone, were in a hurry to execute their attack on freedom of the press saved Saunders from being kidnapped and his constitutional rights outraged.

Attempt Fails

He was at the Houston Country club when the uniformed officers arrived there and attempted to take Saunders away without warrant, leading citizens of the metropolis of southern Texas promptly prevented the kidnapping.

So Saunders is still vigorously criticizing the manner in which 1500 state guardsmen are being used day by day at great expense to all taxpayers of the state to further in Galveston a vicious open-shop fight started in the interests of the Morgan and Mallory steamship lines.

The dock strike in Galveston is months old. June 3 Gov. W. P. Hobby ordered state troops to Galveston on representations that city officials couldn't or wouldn't protect strike-breakers in moving freight.

Open shop advocates claimed that there was terrific freight congestion, that four million bushels of wheat needed abroad to prevent starvation was held up and that unexpressed rioting was going on.

Officials Protest

These charges were vigorously denied by city officials as well as by striking union coastwise dockworkers. It was pointed out that deep sea dockworkers who were being paid a living wage handled wheat and other export cargoes.

But the Open Shop association plea for bayonets financed by taxpayers was supported by the Galveston Commercial association and the Texas chamber of commerce.

The troops came in. They camped in a city park. City officials ordered them to move. They moved to a sandy stretch of beach miles from the docks that were theoretically in need of a heavy and constant guard.

Citizens Angered

Citizens who knew there had been no disorder justifying the invasion of the state troops resented the presence of the open shop army. They backed up their city officials' demands that the troops be withdrawn.

The answer of Gov. Hobby was the forcible removal of all city officials from the mayor down to the last peace officer, on the ground that they were not co-operating with the militia. By this order Gen. Wolters, the leading corporation lawyer and open shop advocate of Houston, was made dictator of Galveston.

Angered at the way the voters of Texas rebuked Wolters and Baileyism at the polls he turned to vent his fire on the only newspaper editor in southern Texas who has had the courage to protest against the way the citizens of Galveston have been deprived of their liberty by the misguided might of the governor.

Neither Gov. Hobby nor Gen. Wolters have disavowed as yet the bunglesome attempt of the national guard officers who attempted to kidnap and try before a military court their leading but by no means their only civilian critic.

Keep Looking Young!

Nobody wants to grow old looking any faster than they can help, some look old at forty while others don't begin to show their age at seventy.

Everybody knows that to keep young looking you have first got to be blessed with good health, and second to do as little worrying as possible. Most of the ills that the flesh is heir to are caused by a disordered stomach, liver or fairness of the class of men conducting our great industries. He said he knew many of the mill agents and overseers of Lowell and always found them to be courteous, kind and reasonable, to be men who regard their employees in the factories, not as machines but as men with human feelings and human hearts. Indeed, he could say from observation that in dealing with their employees, these men are largely swayed by Christian principles.

He pointed out the improved conditions that exist in the factories today, as compared with those of years ago, when the factory people had to work from 5 o'clock in the morning to 7 at night with half an hour for breakfast and three quarters of an hour for dinner. This change, he said, was due largely to the efforts of organized labor.

"We are now face to face with one of the greatest crises in the history of the world," said the reverend speaker. Doctrines are being preached that would overthrow our system of civilization. This is seen in unfortunate Russia, for whose people we should pray that they may be delivered from the sway of the radicals. The same condition threatens the people of this country unless they throw aside radicalism wherever it appears, whether it be the radicalism of capital or of labor. The success of the future will depend upon the degree of co-operation maintained between capital and labor for their common good. Each has rights that must be considered and conceded by the other. Capital and labor must work together for the reason that if capital suffers, labor will not escape; if capital prospers, labor will share that prosperity. The great problem is to bring capital and labor together on an equitable basis of security for capital with reasonable profits; and for labor, a living wage with security of employment. By a living wage I do not mean, said the speaker, what will secure the mere necessities of life, but enough to provide the father with a comfortable home, to educate his children, and to make due provision for sickness and old age. In the economic laws, the principle must be recognized that labor is not a commodity, that the wage earners are not chattels, but human beings made in the image of God, held responsible for their families and their obligations to the community. In this relation between capital and labor there is no room for the autocrat. We want men with big heads, that is great capacity for directing affairs; but they must also have big hearts. There must be perfect co-operation between capital and labor in order to secure the best interests of both and attain the best results.

"Who constitutes the most threatening class in this country today?" asked Dr. Keleher. I have no hesitation in saying that it is the profiteer who is not satisfied with fair profits, or with one million, but who wants many millions. Nothing is so calculated to undermine the foundations of law and order as a sense of injustice on the part of the people and lack of protection by the government. Take for example the single item of coal. Why is it that the industrial life of New England is threatened today because we cannot get coal enough for our factories and our homes? Why have we to pay two or three times as much for a ton of coal as it costs at the mines? The cause is obviously due to profiteering and it should be stopped. It should be stopped before it spreads discontent throughout the land. When a government fails to protect the people, it sows the seeds of revolution in popular discontent. The government to prevent such dangers should provide a remedy and do so at once, not let it go on indefinitely. If there is no law to stop it, let the president call congress in special session to frame a law. If the constitution stands in the way, which is not likely, let the constitution be changed.

Dr. Keleher in conclusion said that the great natural resources provided by God for man's use should be available by all men, while at the same time preserving the rights of private property. The people must be saved from the efforts of the few in controlling the necessities of life, so that the rights of capital and labor may be duly protected and that by co-operation and mutual good will, all the people may enjoy peace, happiness and prosperity.

Mayor Thompson's Address

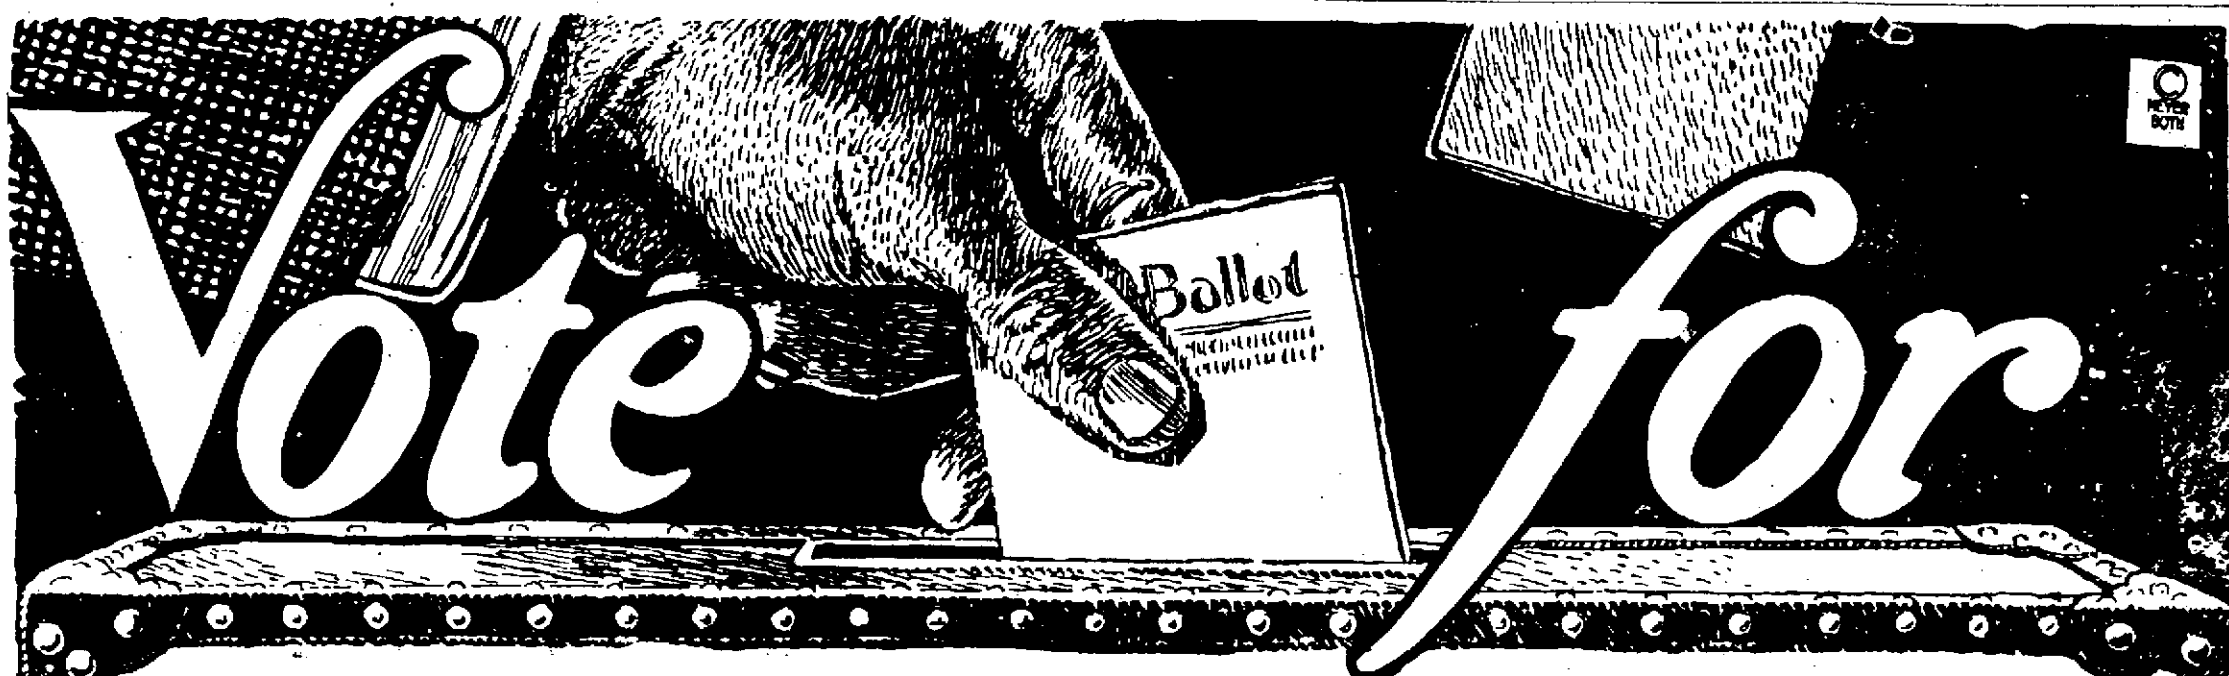

His Honor Mayor Perry D. Thompson arrived a little late, but heard the greater part of Dr. Keleher's address. He was greeted with liberal applause as he bowed to the audience. He said he had little left to say on the subject of interest to labor after the able manner in which they had been discussed by Rev. Dr. Keleher. He intended to be brief also because of the threatening weather conditions. He congratulated the labor unions on the fine observance of the day set apart, not as a vacation but in honor of the man who earns his livelihood by the sweat of his brow. He congratulated the unions upon the industrial peace referred to by the previous speaker, and hoped it would long continue. It is a tribute to the intelligence of our labor leaders as well as to the men who manage our various industries.

It is a proof that the men in the ranks of the unions, appreciate the great privileges of liberty which they enjoy in this glorious country in thus upholding law and order in the industrial life of our beloved city. Somewhere in our dictionaries, he said, there is one word to which he would like to call the attention of the listeners. It is that little word "together" which means so much when applied to the affairs of life. The individual can do but little unaided. As mayor of the city, I can do but little without the co-operation of the people; the priest who has to care for his flock can accomplish little without their support, and so it is with labor unions. By the process of sticking together they have accomplished much. Stick together; not to injure somebody else, not for your own selfish welfare, but that you may aid in bringing happiness and prosperity to the other fellow. Spread this principle of sticking together for the good of the whole throughout this country so that when Labor Day comes again we shall have accomplished greater good for others as well as for ourselves. Keep your eyes turned upward to the great Author of all who will lead you on to the light that never fails.

It had been expected that James E. Morlarity, of the Boston city council, would be present, but he failed to arrive. The committee in charge of the evening meeting consisted of Francis A. Warnock, J. Frank Burke, Frank Simpson and Dana Hart. The military band rendered a fine concert program, closing about 10 o'clock.

crops and does not care to store them in the cellar, they may be stored in so-called pits out doors in the garden or by the house. Beets, carrots, turnips are placed in bins and covered with straw, leaves or other litter, upon which is placed a layer of dirt, over which is placed more litter.

These pits should not be made until danger of heavy frosts, beets, for instance should not be frozen badly out of doors. Parsnips and sniely are better if they have been frozen, therefore the common practice is to permit them to freeze out of doors and bring them into the cellar frozen, or cover them in pits while they are frozen. This means, of course, digging them before the ground freezes and leaving them in a pile outside so that they can freeze.

Clean Up Gardens

As the crops mature and are harvested, the litter should be cleaned up. Any litter such as corn stalks, bean plants, squash vines, tomato vines and the like large enough for corn borers to enter should be collected, permitted to dry and then be burnt. Anything in which the borer cannot enter should be spaded under in order to furnish humus to the soil. An earlier article suggested that seed-rye should be sown upon all bare ground as soon as crops are harvested. This is the last article which will appear this season on home gardening. Any home gardeners or others who have been reading the articles from time to time and who have other questions on any phase of storage or home garden work, should write to the Middlesex county bureau of agriculture and Home Economics, 7 Moody street, Waltham, Mass.

Count and Countess de Coussin

NOBILITY WAS TRAVELING "INCOG"

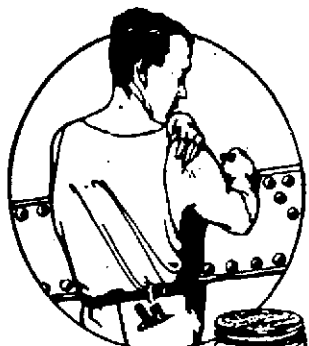

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Plain "Mr. and Mrs." were all the handles attached to Pierre Jouen and his bride, Count and Countess de Coussin, of Normandy, traveling incog through here on their way to San Salvador where they own a coffee plantation.

Although the count is holder of war decorations from three nations and was famous in France as the man who did most in training American doughboys for their great task, he was so modest that it was only after fellow passengers on the Pacific Mail liner pointed him out that he laughingly admitted his identity.

GARDEN NEWS FOR THE PRESENT WEEK

The season is rapidly approaching when we must consider the storage of our garden vegetables. The type and method of storage depends almost entirely upon the quantity and particular vegetable to be stored. Most home gardeners growing any appreciable quantity of vegetables should have a storage in their home cellar. This should consist of a room partitioned off one corner of the cellar. A room need not be partitioned where there is no artificial heat in the cellar and where the cellar is damp. Most home cellars now have heating apparatus, therefore it is desirable to have one corner set aside as a storage location. The partitions can be easily made of 2x2 or 2x4 inch lumber, papered and sheathed on both sides. If possible, the room should be located in a corner of the cellar where access can be had to a cellar window. The center light of the window should be removed and a wooden flue built from the lower half of the window right down to within 6 inches of the cellar bottom. This is to let in to the bottom of the storage room, cool air. A damper, of course, should be placed in this cold air flue. The upper half of the window light should be closed with a trap door which can be easily opened and shut. This is to be used as an outlet for the warm air. With the damper in the cold air flue and this warm air outlet it is easy to regulate the temperature in the storage room. During the fall they can be opened up in the evening and the cold, damp air permitted to enter during the night and the damper closed up in the morning, keeping the warm air out and holding the cold, damp air in. Shelves and bins can be built in this storage room in which are placed the vegetables or fruits.

What Uniformity Does for the Cord Tire User

If anyone asked you what uniformity in tires meant, you would probably say—getting the same repeated economy tire after tire and season after season.

There you would put your finger on the most vital thing about cord tires.

Give the cord tire user uniform performance and you give him one hundred per cent of the cord principle.

Leave quality to accident and the result is different.

People will tell you that the United States Rubber Company has been making cord tires longer than anybody else. Since 1903, when one of its factories created

the first automobile cord tire ever made in America.

But the outcome has gone far beyond the cord idea, great as that is in itself.

The United States Rubber Company laid down the most rigid manufacturing code that any tire has ever been submitted to.

largest rubber planted area in the world. Starting uniformity right at nature's source.

Erecting a fabric mill devoted exclusively to cord fabric. Manned by specialized employees working with selected mechanical equipment from threshold to shipping platform. To make all U. S. Royal Cord fabric uniform.

U. S. Royal Cord Tires occupy a peculiarly separate position in today's vast tire market.

They are more sought-after than sold.

For their makers are more interested in protecting the cord idea through uniformity than they are in selling the name of a thing without its economy service.

The car owner who seeks United States standards in tubes is well paid in more mileage for his tires. U. S. Red Tubes. U. S. Grey Tubes.

SOME QUESTIONS

Mr. Scribble Scratch, the fairy school-master, made a low bow before the fairy Queen, and then turned his gaze upon the company. And the company, certainly returned it, for the school-master was a most peculiar person. He was tall and thin as a birch-rod, only much pleasanter looking. Having a mouth that insisted on turning up at the corners, although he tried his best to keep it turned down, to make him look more dignified. And his ears, poor things, looked as though they had a disagreement with his head and were stretching as far away as they could conveniently get, perhaps because in such a position they could hear the faintest sound. His nose, too, seemed to be trying to get away as far as possible, and in the effort had grown to quite a length. And he wore enormous spectacles and a long-tailed coat, and let his hair grow in a forelock which helped him to think when he pulled it. Yes, Mr. Scribble Scratch was quite a person, and he didn't wish you to forget it.

The Fairy Queen introduced everybody, although Tinkling and Scribble and come highly recommended. "I've been wondering if we haven't found some helpers for you, Scribble Scratch," smiled the Queen nodding toward the children. "These people have had some experience in Fairyland and have highly recommended."

"Hm!" coughed Scribble Scratch pulling the corners of his mouth down. The good news had turned them up at once and he was afraid of looking too pleased.

"Hm!" said he again and this time looked over the tops of his glasses. "That depends on their education only. What's the capital of America?"

"Capital A. If you please," answered Nancy timidly.

"A million dollars," put in Nick, who'd heard his father talk business. "Both right," nodded Scribble Scratch marking in a book. "You're hired."

The Meadow Grove school was under an old oak tree on the edge of Rustling Forest, in the Land-You-and-I-Know-About, the seats being moss-covered stones of various sizes, depending on the pupils who were to sit upon them. The desks, too, were of stone but not moss covered, of course.

Mr. Scribble Scratch, the fairy schoolmaster, made his way carefully hence, through brambles and ground-ivy, followed closely by Nancy and Nick and their faithful friend, the wise old Magician Mushroom. Had you seen them stepping along looking so learned and everything, you'd have said right away, I sure, "My goodness, but the creatures will learn a lot for this year with such smart teachers!" But all the little Meadow Grove people peeping down from branches and from under bushes pecked each other in the ribs and whispered, "Sl!" There goes the new master! But who are the others? They were very soon to find out, for before they'd time to scramble back home, Nick was leaving notices at everybody's front door. Notices which read, "School Begins Tomorrow. Everybody Come!" And Nancy was busy dusting around, filling inkwells, stacking up copy-books, and tacking up maps. While the Magical Mushroom patched up a crack in the bell.

After a while Nick came tarrying back looking very much upset. "Two people aren't coming," he informed them. "Mr. Owl and Mrs. Bai won't let their children come unless we have night school. But Mr. Owl says he's wise enough to teach his son all he needs to know."

Scribble Scratch pulled his forelock. "They'll have to come because the law says so," said he, "but as tell them they can sleep after they get here. We'll arrange for beds."

Nick went off with the message, but came back with a worried look on his face.

OPERA HOUSE

If large and enthusiastic audiences at initial theatre performances are indicative of success during a coming season, then the 1920-21 engagement of the Lowell Players at the local Opera House, judging from the attendance and spirit of the spectators, will be one of their most successful in this city. The first performances for the fall season were given yesterday afternoon and evening before capacious audiences, and aside from applause for the general excellence of the production, great receptions were extended to the members of the cast.

Miss Marguerite Fields, the leading lady, whose acting last year won her the favor of Lowell audiences, was obliged to spare a few moments from her part in the play to acknowledge the reception tendered her at both performances. Miss Priscilla Knowles and Jack Bennett, supervisor of the present production, were also forced to acknowledge a greeting upon their first appearance.

The story chosen for the first play of the season is "Civilian Clothes," a romance by Thomas Buchanan and one of "Olive Moroso's most successful productions. Mr. J. William Shaskan, manager, has received congratulations upon his opening selection. Just as the characters in the story itself, are true to life, the interpretation of the Lowell Players is never lacking in correctness or exaggerated in detail.

"Civilian Clothes" is an after-the-story that does not bore as most stories of this kind do; it is a pleasing proof of the proverb that a man can't judge by his clothes. It shows the difference in a girl's eye, between the dash and vigor of a man dressed in a military officer's uniform and one garbed in the commonness of civilian dress, and relates how that difference affected a romance begun on the battlefield of France.

The leading lady is cast as the little aristocratic and prudish girl of the South who married an officer while she was serving as a Red Cross nurse in France. Milton Byron, new leading man, taking the part of the

LOVING CUP FOR F. P. ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, democratic candidate for vice president, took a prominent part in the Labor day celebration in Brooklyn yesterday, placing a wreath at the foot of the statue of Lafayette and later being the recipient of a loving cup from the 13,000 employees of the New York navy yard. Among those present at the exercises was the candidate's mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt.

The loving cup was presented in appreciation of his services as assistant secretary of the navy. He said the achievements of the navy could not have been accomplished had not the work of the men in the navy yard been of the finest and best.

Mr. Roosevelt started late yesterday afternoon for Eastport, Me., to join his family for a three-days' vacation before resuming campaign work.

The pulp and paper exports of Canada increased from nearly $9,000,000 in 1911 to $10,000,000 in 1920.

aroused at the act of treachery directed at him and the girl of his heart. Of course in the beginning the odds are largely against him and his struggle there are placed in his path are such that would discourage the average fighting man, but such is not the case with Farnham, who tackles the job with characteristic calm and coolness, and finally wins after a long and desperate battle. The play is a clever one and must be seen to be appreciated.

In addition to this clever production is another very good offering, "The Slim Princess." Goldwyn offering featuring Mabel Normand in the title role. This play deals with a Moroccan princess who because of her daintiness and slim, supple figure, is considered ineligible for marriage. The princess stands little chance of becoming a bride until a young American happens around and secures inclusion to favor her daintiness. The program also provides a very enjoyable comedy and musical numbers that are very pleasing.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

There are two attractions on this week's program at the Merrimack Square theatre, "Civilian Clothes," an unusual picture with Thomas Meighan and Miss Martha Lanham share honors, and "The Man of Straw," a story of the north, which is very interesting. There is also a comedy of the highest type as well as instructive films furnished by the International News Pictures. The orchestra selections are also very enjoyable.

"Civilian Clothes" unravels the story of a young society miss, Florence Marshall, who during America's early career in the war sought relief from society life in the Salvation Army khaki and went to France. There she met Capt. Sam McGinnis, a rough-and-ready sort of a chap, who at the time of their meeting was giving the auxiliary women orders to retire to the rear under escort to avoid the danger of a coming encounter with the enemy. Despite her stubborn persistence to stay and witness a real battle, the woman was forced to go and this started a little love affair between the pair, which finally led to a marriage.

Later the young madame was informed of the death of her husband after his identification tag had been found on the battlefield. She accepted the report as true and returned to America at the close of the war, heart-broken. She concealed the fact of marriage and resumed her place in society circles. Suddenly the young captain, who was much alive, returned, but was snubbed by his own wife because his civilian clothes did not fit her imagination of what a husband's dress should be while his manners displeased her. After informing his wife that she would be taught democracy the young captain secured employment as a butler in a rich home, keeping his

While at his work at the Tremont & Suffolk mill shortly before noon yesterday, Francis Carrara, of 10 Tilden street, suffered severe injuries to his right arm. The ambulance removed him to the Lowell Corporation hospital.

Back Achy? Feel "All Worn Out?"

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

ARE you burdened from morning to night with a dull, nagging backache? Does any little exertion leave you "all worn-out"? Does it seem sometimes as if you just can't keep going? You know then, there is something wrong. So why not find out what it is and correct it? Very likely, it's your kidneys. Modern life with its hurry and worry, and lack of rest and sleep, throws a heavy strain upon the kidneys. The kidneys slow up and that tired, depressed feeling and constant backache, are but natural results. You may have headaches and dizzy spells, too, and annoying kidney irregularities. Don't wait for dropsy, gravel, or dangerous Bright's disease. Determine to be well and stay well. Use DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS. DOAN'S have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

These Are Lowell Cases:

NEW YORK STREET

Mrs. Roy Laurie, 133 New York street, says: "I had attacks of kidney trouble and my back bothered me, especially in the morning. I felt weak and languid and often had dizzy headaches. I knew my kidneys were causing the trouble, for they were weak. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and used them as directed. They helped me right away. The dizziness, tired feeling, my kidneys also became regular in action. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills highly for back and headache 'let's' and I was free from that dull, what they have done for me."

Mrs. Laurie gave the above statement on May 5, 1917, and on February 12, 1918, she added: "I have had no return of kidney trouble since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me three years ago."

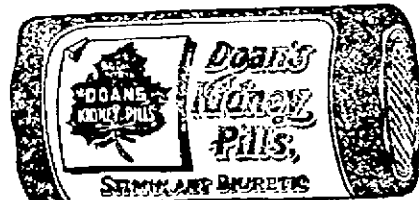

GAGE STREET

Wm. L. Hance, machinist, 21 Gage street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been a great help to me and I couldn't be without them in my home. My work is trying on the back and kidneys. At times I have to work in a cramped position and it nearly breaks my back to bend or straighten. My kidneys were sore and lame. The kidney secretions passed irregularly. I used Doan's Kidney Pills as directed and soon felt like a different man. I could do about my work without any trouble with backache."

BELLEVUE STREET

Mrs. L. G. Gifford, 28 Bellevue street, gave the following statement April 2, 1918: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills for backache caused by kidney trouble. I was all worn out and suffered from rheumatic pains. Specks seemed to float before my eyes. My kidneys didn't act right at all. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and got much relief."

On February 17, 1919, Mrs. Gifford said: "There is no doubt about Doan's Kidney Pills being a splendid remedy for the kidneys, lumbrago and rheumatic pains. They have done me a world of good and I cannot praise them highly enough."

No package of Doan's Kidney Pills is genuine unless it bears the maple leaf trade mark and the signature—"Jas. Doan."

OSGOOD STREET

H. W. Hillard, city fireman, 20 Osgood street, says: "I suffered a long time with my kidneys before I could get anything to help me. I happened to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills and, believe me, I was glad to get them. They helped me from the start. Before I took Doan's, I had a dull, constant ache in the small of my back all the time. If I bent over, I could hardly straighten up again. Sharp pains would catch me in my back. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and caused me much annoyance. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of all this trouble and there has never been any return of it."

MIDDLESEX STREET

D. W. Parker, harness maker, 717 Middlesex street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have proven their value to me. I was in an awful bad fix with kidney and bladder trouble. I also had rheumatic pains in my limbs, which made my condition worse. I had to walk with a cane and I could hardly get to the store and back to my home, as I just had to hobble along. The kidney secretions were scanty and painful in passage. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they went right to the seat of the trouble. The kidney secretions became natural and the rheumatic pains left me. I have had no need of a cane for the past two years and cannot praise Doan's highly enough."

VIEW OF THE PARADE SHOWING CHIEF MARSHAL AND PAINTERS' UNION

ected to spend the holiday week-end out of town.

An overcast sky came in with the break of day, bearing out the prognostications of the weather man that the holiday would be sprinkled with showers. Although they did not materialize, the clouds hung low enough to shut out the sun practically the entire day and undoubtedly this uncertainty kept hundreds of persons at home.

Sidewalks and curbs were well lined however, when the marchers passed through the downtown streets and full measures of appreciation were accorded them as they swung along. There was music galore, the national colors flew everywhere and the unions in the respective garbs of their trade made a satisfying appearance. There were no flags, but color was not lacking, for many of the paraders carried bouquets of flowers, the gifts of thoughtful friends.

In the afternoon there was a baseball game to attract several thousand men and women fans to the South common diamond, while the theatres were packed to capacity. The river also had its full quota of pleasure seekers, where the Lowell Motor Boat club ran off a program of speed events for gasoline launches and the city, at its municipal pool on the boulevard side, held swimming races as a fitting climax to a most successful season of regulated aquatic.

The evening mass meeting on the common, with the band stand for the speakers' rostrum, officially closed the day's program as far as it concerned the Trades & Labor council.

The labor men, themselves, were satisfied with the observance of the day and while they would have welcomed a longer parade and more pretentious, perhaps, they evidenced no lack of interest in labor's cause.

As the parade neared city hall, Mayor Thompson was ready with pen and pencil to jot down facts which might lead to a selection of the best appearing representation in line, but this too, had been done away with and no award was made.

Very Good Parade

The parade formed in Thorndike, Summer and Highland streets with the first division resting in Summer street. The second and third divisions flanked Thorndike street, while the fourth division stood in Highland street. Shortly after 10 o'clock Chief Marshal Francis A. Warnock gave the "forward, march," command and the column swung into Thorndike street headed by the superintendent of police in the department automobile. The route of parade was through Thorndike to Middlesex, to Gorham as far as Davis square. Thence through Central to Merrimack, around Merrimack square into Bridge street as far as Sixth st., where the marchers countermarched back to Merrimack square, through Merrimack street, to Moody street, to Cabot street, back to Merrimack street and by city hall, where the parade was reviewed by Mayor and Mrs. Perry D. Thompson and the four city commissioners, Messrs. John F. Salmon, Jas. E. Donnelly, Dennis A. Murphy and George E. Marchand. At Monument square the chief marshal left the head of the parade and reviewed the marchers at the same time dismissing them. The parade was very good despite the fact that many craftsmen are out of the city. There was music galore, the organizations in line were well represented, the men marched with precision and thousands of people cheered them en route.

Heading the line was a platoon of police headed by Lieut. Connors. Then came the Lowell Military band, followed by Chief Marshal Warnock and his staff composed of Daniel Moynahan, chief of staff; Fred Drouin, adjutant and the following aids: Bartenders, Frank McMahon; beamers, John Duffy; backsmen, 243, Frank Nelson; carpenters, 1153, D. P. Beauregard; cotton weavers, Henry Angew; dresser tenders, James Millgate; loomfixers, Henry Hamilton; molders, Michael Larkin; municipal employees, Charles O'Brien; painters, George E. Fifield; pavers and ramblers, Patrick Guthrie; Polish textile workers, Michael Wengen; teamsters, 72, Telephone Cardinal; tramsters, 55, John Ashe; doffers, and spinners, Christo Maloney; ring-spinners, Albert Coutur; woolen spinners, Henry Tonney; railroad carmen, 133, Charles Flannigan.

Charles E. Anderson acted as marshal of the first division, which was composed of automobiles conveying representatives of the various labor organizations to the Trades and Labor council.

The second division had for marshal

the textile organizations, each union being headed by its respective president. The United States Cartridge Co. band headed the division and the first organization in line was the Lowell Textile council, followed by the Polish Textile Workers. Next came the Doffers' union, followed by the Beamers' union. Next in line were the members of the Slasher Tenders' union. The Zouaves Drum and Bugle Corps of Notre Dame de Lourdes' parish preceded the Ring Spinner Fixers' union. The O.M.L. Cadet Drum corps came next followed by the Woolen Spinners, followed by the Loomfixers' union.

The third division was composed of municipal employees and the Molders' union and was marshaled by Murtha Lyons. Buckley's band was the first musical organization in line and was followed by the Health Department's union. Then came the City Teamsters, followed by the Irish Volunteers Fire and Drum corps. The Municipal Employees' union was next in line and the end of the division was taken up by the International Molders' union.

The fourth division, Patrick Bradley, Marshal, was composed of building crafts and was headed by the Lowell Cadet band. The International Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers' union took up the lead, followed by the Carpenters' union. The Splendid City Drum corps came next followed by the Painters' union, the rear of the division and end of the parade being taken up by the Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators' union.

Most of the marchers wore their regular citizens' clothes and all carried small American flags. The chief marshal and staff were attired in frock coats and wore silk hats. The members of the Loomfixers' union wore white shirts, black trousers, black caps and black ties. They were very numerous and presented a fine appearance. The teamsters, chauffeurs, stablemen and helpers were attired in black trousers, black shirts, black caps and white ties. The representatives of the three locals of the Carpenters' union wore white shirts, black ties and straw hats bearing a band inscribed "Lowell Carpenters." The Painters and Paperhangers wore white overalls and white caps, the former also wearing on the lapel of their jumpers handsome pinks.

The chief marshal carried two huge bouquets of flowers, which were presented him by friends along the route of the parade. Henry Fortier, president of the Ring Spinner Fixers' union, who headed his organization, was also presented a handsome bouquet in Central street by little Miss Lillian Roberts.

At the close of the parade the various organizations repaired to their respective halls, where informal gatherings took place during which refreshments were served and musical numbers were given.

Stop Buying So Much Gas!

The Overland Sedan

*Costs by the Month, Saves by the Mile!
Eats Up Distance, Saves Dollars!*

On a railroad, it is the trip and not the ticket that completes the transaction; and it is so with an automobile. No institution can build up goodwill on good-byes.

The Willys-Overland Organization is just as interested in Overland owners after they have bought as before they are sold.

Saving you money on up-keep is just as important as saving you money on the price of the car. And when gasoline began to go up four years ago, word went out to our designers that Overland owners must be protected, and the price of gasoline must be brought down—but not at the price of comfort!—get that, for that was the crux of the problem.

Hypothetically, it was impossible, and yet—

Under stimulus of a great public need, and spurred on by the pride of a great reputation, the designers of the Overland have Done the Thing that Couldn't be Done!

they have unraveled still another insoluble secret of mechanics, by creating that marvel of mechanism, the new Suspension Triplex Spring, permitting the use of light alloy steels for economy, and acting as a pneumatic buffer between the Road and You!

What the new Overland car and its remarkable improvements cost to create we shall never know. But we do know that it cost $6,000,000 to get ready to incorporate them into the new Overland car, and that the Overland car was a great car before these improvements were initiated and adopted.

So it seems a fair conclusion: That an institution that will voluntarily upset the ramifications of one of the greatest automobile manufacturing plants in the world, in order to reduce the gasoline bills of Overland owners, justifies the past, the future, and the immediate confidence of the American people.

Ninety-seven cities recently reported ninety-seven Overland Sedans as averaging 25.2 miles per gallon of gas

LIEUT. COL. ROOSEVELT'S BREAK

Lieut. Colonel Roosevelt has made himself rather ridiculous by a palpable mis-statement in a speech in Maine in which he said that "it was the republican party that fought the war." "There was," he said, "not a mole representative of the close official family of the national democratic administration who to the best of my knowledge, was during the war, within the range of a gun fired by the enemy. We can at least give them this credit. They did not use their influence to be sent where the danger was worst."

This charge has the boldness of the speaker's father, but it lacks the colonel's accuracy. It is not at all complimentary to the 2,000,000 democrats who fought in the war, accepting whatever duties were assigned them, to be told that the war was fought by republicans.

It is in extremely bad taste for Lieut. Roosevelt to make any political distinction among the soldiers who served in the world war. In the service they were loyal Americans, neither republicans nor democrats, and we venture to say that if it came to a count, now that the issue has been raised, the democrats would greatly outnumber the republicans; and despite the assertion of this young lieutenant, they took no second place when it came to a fight.

Now as to the actual facts, it happens that not many of the cabinet officials are blessed with large families; but their sons and daughters in each and every case did their full duty. Secretary McAdoo has three sons and every one of them volunteered and served in the navy, subject to the dangers of the lurking submarines. Postmaster General Burleson has no sons, but his son-in-law, although having three children under eight years of age, entered the aviation service and was about to sail for France when the armistice was declared. His sister, a widow, furnished two sons who served in the trenches and one made the supreme sacrifice. "Secretary Daniels' son was rejected in the draft owing to defective eyesight, but at his father's request, this objection was waived and the boy entered the Marine Corps, recognized as one of the most dangerous branches of the service.

Secretary Lane's son was in the air service; Secretary Houston has one son who although under age, left Harvard, enlisted and became an ensign. Secretary Redfield's only son served in the navy all through the war. Secretary Wilson has three sons, all of whom enlisted as privates, two of them serving in France with their divisions, and both won commissions for meritorious service. Secretary of War Baker has no children over ten years of age, but six times he crossed the ocean on important business, passing through the lanes infested with submarines. It is plain, therefore, that Lieut. Roosevelt has made a gross mis-statement, which is a great injustice to the officials concerned and to democrats in general. If the republicans fought the war, there would be a record of embalmers' beef dismember in camps, round robins and other evidences of mismanagement.

THE TRADE BALANCE

A few pessimistic souls saw in the recently published report of American foreign trade something to be frightened at. But what they saw was nothing other than a declining toward normal of the long-sided trade balance.

Nothing to be frightened at. Really, it is something to welcome.

Unless foreign nations can pay their American debts they travel to the poorhouse via bankruptcy. They cannot pay these debts in gold; not enough gold.

They can pay in goods, things to eat, to wear, to use in other ways. This is what they are doing.

Before the war the United States was paying Europe something like a half billion dollars a year. This went over largely in the form of food, oil, cotton. It paid interest on European capital invested here. The war rearranged that. European capital withdrew from American investments; except for munitions of war, American capital went to Europe. Now Europe must pay America half billion dollars a year as interest charge. Europe cannot pay in gold; she must pay in goods.

Europe is paying. That is why imports into the United States increased during the fiscal year ending June 30. It is true that other continents, Asia, South America, Australia and Africa sold more to America than they purchased. The trade balance is in their favor. This is partly accounted for by the fact that Europe doesn't make all her payments to America directly. She sells manufactured goods to South America, and South America sends coffee to America, and in this roundabout way Europe pays United States debts. Probably long before Europe gets her American bills settled the United States will have owned her trade with the others.

The billion dollars spent for coffee, rubber and leather materials of South America, Africa, Australia, must be balanced by increased exports from America to those continents. The trade balance now is a billion dollars in their favor.

The thing to do isn't to worry over the decreasing trade balance with Europe. It is to think about increasing exports to other continents, particularly South America. This can be aided by the investment of American capital in the development of South America, Asia and Africa.

COLLEGE EXTENSION COURSES

In addition to the courses of study provided in our local schools, the College Extension Department offers many opportunities to students who wish to take up special branches to enable them to reach higher positions. Already the state board has arranged for a number of classes to be conducted in Lowell during the winter by personal instruction, while correspondence courses are open at all times to those who wish to take them. There are nearly one hundred courses open in all and wherever twenty students agree to take up any course, the department will secure a teacher to meet them at least once a week. The highest fee for any course is $2 and for most of the courses $1. The courses thus far decided upon for Lowell are:

English Composition Advanced, American Citizenship, Gasoline Automobiles, Principles of Accounting, Elementary Accounting, Oral English, Public Speaking, Practical Applied Mathematics, English for Business.

A teacher will be provided for any other course in which twenty students register. Thus there are great other courses in which twenty students by which young men can improve their chances of promotion in their respective occupations. Any information required relative to this department of public education may be obtained by addressing James A. Moyer, College Extension Department, State House, Boston.

CONCORD RIVER A MENACE

It is understood that the state board of health has jurisdiction over the Concord river so far as sanitation is concerned. If any member or representative of that body should inspect the Concord below the tannery of the American Hide and Leather company, when the water is low after the mills shut down, he would find it to be a veritable plague spot, a menace to public health, worse than an open sewer, because the contents of many sewers appear to be choking the bed of the river to a depth of several feet. "The river at this point and down to the Middlesex yard should be dredged. It may be asked what would be done with the rotten stuff removed. The farmers of surrounding towns would undoubtedly be glad to cart it away or even to pay for it as fertilizer for their farms.

This section of the river has been a veritable nuisance in the summer time for several years past. The filth is forming islands in the river above and below the Rogers street bridge. The state board that tolerates this menace to the public health should exercise a very serious responsibility.

When the auditorium shall have been completed, we do not believe the people will tolerate the noisome odors carried down to its doors from above Rogers street, on the fifth laden waters of the lower Concord.

According to republican custom, Channing Cox, now lieutenant governor, is to have the governorship handed to him on a silver platter so far as the republicans are concerned. Speaker Warner is seeking the nomination for lieutenant governor, feeling that if he gets it, and happens to be elected, it will insure his subsequent election as governor unless the democratic candidate should be chosen. It remains for the democrats to upset this custom and leave the contest for governor and lieutenant governor open to all comers without discrimination.

It looks as if it were useless for labor organizations to fight for collective bargaining if they cannot induce their members to abide by the agreements entered into by the head officials. The 35,000 miners who refused to return to work in the anthracite coal fields, have made a farce of collective bargaining with President Wilson. Their insurgency will not only fail of its purpose but injure the cause of organized labor.

The Rev. Mr. Kopman, of New Jersey, advocates bathing suits that will cover the entire body. The reception tendered him by the bathers at Morristown, N. J., offered rather tangible proofs that there, at least, his crusade is unpopular. The arguments with which he was met took the form of over-ripe tomatoes, which, if rapidly projected and in generous numbers are rather difficult to refute.

Today inaugurates in this state, the first application of universal suffrage at the polls. The women are now clothed with the same political rights as are the men. Owing to the short time allowed for registration, the number of women voters will be comparatively few but on November 2 their real power will be shown for the first time.

Let every registered voter get to the polls and vote in the primaries. If the best candidates are not nominated at the primaries, they cannot be voted for on election day. Therefore to prevent such fundamental mistakes let every voter go to the polls and register his or her choice. Those who leave the primary work to others and criticize afterwards are political slackers.

Prof. A. Britton of Illinois, in charging that the democratic party was receiving funds from British sources has been convicted of a false statement on examination before the senate committee at Chicago. That more than can be said of any of the democratic leaders examined.

We have heard of bandits holding up a train, but never before heard of their snatching a train. Yet that is the story that comes from Chicago. The vacation season is over and now the political pot will proceed to boil.

SEEN AND HEARD

Some find it a long wait for the first week's pay after vacation.

Some candidates have dry platforms and wet basements.

Thieves stole a case of dynamite, thinking it was whiskey. Whiskey can be dynamite, but dynamite can't be whiskey.

Man-Made Laws

The local woman who waxed indignant when told that she could not vote for Harding and Coolidge at the primaries declared that no man could dictate to her how she would vote was not in the least mollified when it was explained to her that Harding and Coolidge had already been nominated and expressed her disgust thusly: "Man-made laws make me sick. We women will change them all and will hold all the offices, too!"—Lawrence Telegram.

Crossing the Rubicon

Julius Caesar was another guy who, like Nero, couldn't stand for the standard idea of the harem. One morning he grabbed the telephone and called up a friend in Rome. "Say, Malsie," he murmured, "after spending three-quarters of an hour getting central to pay some 'tention to him, I'm coming right down from Gaul. How about a little musical comedy tomorrow eve?" "T'm on," Malsie replied, hustling like everything down to her dressmaker's, to find out whether skirts had shrunk any in the latest style books from Paris. It was to keep that date that J. Caesar made his famous jump across the Rubicon. And say, folks, that old wooden bridge nearly caused him to dismount Malsie. But J. C. was no slouch about correcting mistakes. He saw that it was a bum bridge. And that was why he put up a dandy new suspension bridge there. Now anybody can cross the Rubicon without scaring the dickens out of every Roman.

A Good Loner

Though Mr. Ponzi "stung" him for $100 the other day, a resident of Franklin, N. H., who can't understand how they can prosecute him. The following taken from the Manchester Union describes the situation as it appears to him: "Franklin has a number of speculators who subscribed for the Ponzi notes according to well founded rumors. One man who possesses a note does not expect the courts will punish the 'financial wizard' as he was familiarly called a few weeks ago. This man says that Ponzi did not collect his money, but he struggled for a chance to buy one of the notes and remained in line six hours before he could get up to the counter to deposit his $100 cash and take the note, which promised to pay 50 per cent. in 45 days. There is nothing incriminating in the wording of the note and the collector, though a knowledgeable himself 'stung,' does not see where there is anything against Ponzi to merit criminal prosecution."

(Copyright, 1920, N.E.A.) Perhaps you are a monarch and your crown is a sword.

Is barred against some rival over-lord. You know not that I am, nor do I care. Whether you live or die, yet I must share.

The sweat and blood, the triumph or defeat. The world is so compact and so complete.

Mayhap you are a slave, whose swarthy face Is never seen in any market place, And yet the product of your hardy deeds.

Affects the terms of all I sell, or use. Borne by the dealer's pack, or ocean's gale. Your little ounce decides my trembling scale.

Perhaps you are a poet and you dwell In some forgotten hermit's buried cell. Yet some chance passer-by shall heed your song, And every breeze shall blow your word along.

Until all human hearts shall beat with yours, As long as red blood runs and love endures.—EDMUND VANCE COOKE.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Many ex-service men of this city are receiving vocational training at the expense of the government at schools and shops within the city limits. It was a surprise to me to learn through the local office of the Red Cross that so many former service men, more or less disabled in the war, are attending the commercial schools in this city and that they will resume their studies when these schools open for the fall term. I have also discovered that a number of disabled veterans are learning trades in garages and machine shops. It is a fact, however, that some of these men required considerable persuasion to induce them to sign up because they did not realize the advantages of the training thus freely offered. Somehow, the belief has spread abroad among service men that when they sign for vocational training, they lose their compensation under the bureau of war risk insurance, but that is not so.

A man declared eligible to receive compensation from the bureau has also the privilege of taking up vocational training. The only difference is in the department which makes the payment. A disabled veteran receiving vocational training receives his compensation through the federal board for vocational training and not through the war risk department.

From the tenth floor of The Sun building I can see a business block the roof of which is to be repaired with tar and gravel. Around the coping on the outer edge of the roof is a row of bags of gravel. I suppose from my point of view they seem to be so near the outer edge that I would not care to walk close to the building lest one of them should come down on my head. People on the street, however, even cannot see them and it's an odd saying what you don't know will do you no harm; but I don't believe that doctrine.

The state highway commission issues yearly a list of all automobile registrations of the state, which is also found in book form and sent to police stations throughout the commonwealth, but strange to say there is no list of the vehicles of motorcyclists. It is an automobile accident occurs and the driver of the car fails to stop as he is ordered to do by law, his registration number is taken and then his identity is disclosed by consulting the registration book at the station. But if a motorcycle gets into a mishap and the operator fails to stop, in order to get his name and address, one has to write to the highway commission. It seems to me that the registration of motorcycles should be included in the same book with automobile registrations.

MATRIMONIAL

A pretty wedding took place Sunday afternoon when Mr. Edouard Couture and Miss Rosa Letendre, two well known young residents of this city, were united in the bonds of matrimony, the ceremony being performed at Notre Dame de Lourdes church at 3 o'clock by the acting pastor, Rev. J. B. A. Barrety, O.M.I. The bride was handsomely attired in white georgette crepe and wore a tulle veil caught up with a wreath of bridal roses and pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and sweet peas. The witnesses were Messrs. Henry Couture and Felix Letendre, fathers of the groom and bride respectively. At the close of the ceremony the bride party repaired to the home of the groom's parents, 1 Clark street, where a bountiful wedding dinner was served to about 100 guests. Later a reception was held during which musical and literary numbers were given. Attending the festivities were guests from Wallingford, Charlestown, Boston, Haverhill, Worcester and Canada. Mr. and Mrs. Couture, who were the recipients of numerous wedding gifts left on the 9:15 o'clock train for Montreal, Quebec, Cap de la Madeleine and other cities in the Dominion and upon their return in three weeks they will make their home at 230 Steadman street.

Friday evening, the bride, who is a popular member of the Athenakia club was tendered a reception at 1 Clark street by the members of the organization and was showered with numerous gifts including silverware, linen, cut glass and furniture. In the course of the evening a buffet luncheon was served and entertainment numbers were given by Miss Donaldina Chappelaine, Miss Alicia Letendre, Miss Eva Letendre, Miss Beatrice Couture, Miss Rosalia Letendre, Miss Eva Richard. A feature of the program was a mock marriage in which participated Miss Rosalia Letendre, Mr. Edouard Couture and Miss Aldea Letendre.

HELD OUTING AT REVERE BEACH

Twenty-five automobile trucks conveyed the members of the local councils of the Ancient Order of Hibernians to Revere beach Sunday forenoon, the occasion being the first annual outing under the auspices of the order. The automobile parade headed by the Irish Volunteer, Pipe and Drum corps left headquarters in Middle street and went through Central and Gorham streets on its way to Boston via Billerica. Upon reaching the beach, dinner was served at the Revere house and the afternoon was spent in bathing and sports, the party returning to Lowell at 9 o'clock. Those responsible for the success of the event were as follows: President Michael J. Monahan, Secretary Catherine Gaffney and Treasurer Mary McKeenady.

THE IRISH PICKETS

Editor Sun: As a sympathizer with the Irish cause and one who earnestly hopes to see it borne on to final success, I wish to ask who is behind the women pickets whose conduct in the United States Senate and before the British embassy as well as in other instances since then, has been so ridiculous? Who is behind them? All the Irish organizations have disclaimed connection with this picket business. Who is paying their bills? Can you inform me, Mr. Editor?

Yours truly,

W. J. F.

In reply to the above we may say that when the Irish pickets first appeared in Washington, The Sun correspondent at the capital investigated their list and found that there was not a single Irish woman among them. The leaders were members of an organization of actresses. Later, however, they have lured some Irish women to join them.—Ed.

DROWNED WHILE BATHING

Lowell Young Man Loses Life at Crystal Lake—Body Recovered Sunday Afternoon

Edward Polisson, aged 19 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Polisson, of 110 Powell street was drowned while bathing at Crystal lake, North Chelmsford Sunday afternoon. The body was recovered later and removed to the home of the parents by Undertaker Joseph Albert.

The young man attended a family picnic on the shores of the lake yesterday afternoon and with several others he went in bathing near the ice houses. Shortly after he entered the water he was seized with cramps, and although he shouted for help, those who rushed to his rescue arrived too late to render assistance, for immediately after shouting he disappeared beneath the surface. The body was soon recovered, for the water at that point is but eight feet deep, and Fred Varney was summoned, but efforts to resuscitate the lad were fruitless. Deceased leaves his parents, two sisters, Eva and Anna, and his brothers, Clarence, Eugene and Thur.

200 Drowned in Tidal Wave

TOKIO, Sept. 7.—Two hundred men were drowned in a tidal wave which swept over buildings and barracks on the island of Saghalien, according to reports received here.

DEATH DUE TO GAS POISONING

Dennis Laveriere, aged about 60 years, a farm laborer by occupation, was found dead in his home at the depot, 506 Middlesex street, at about 1 o'clock this forenoon, death being due, according to the medical examiner, to accidental gas poisoning. The proprietor of the house while going through the hall this forenoon detected an odor of gas and upon investigating found it to come from the room of Laveriere. He opened the door, which was locked by means of a spring lock and found the man lying in bed, life extinct. Dr. Thomas B. Smith, medical examiner, was notified and in company with Sgt. McCoughrey and Patrolman Dwyer, he made an investigation of the room and found a defective gas fixture, from which gas was escaping. Deceased at one time was employed on the Fox farm in Braintree. The body was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertakers C. H. Malley's Sons.

Light Vote Is Predicted

as the running-mate of Governor Coolidge, the republican vice presidential nominee.

The democratic candidates for the nomination for governor were Richard H. Long of Framingham, the party nominee in 1915 and 1919, and State Senator John A. Walsh of Boston.

The unopposed candidates for other places on the democratic ticket were: Lieut. governor, Michael A. O'Leary, chairman of the democratic state committee; secretary of state, Charles H. McElroy; treasurer, Patrick O'Leary; auditor, Mrs. Alice E. Crum; attorney general, Michael L. Sullivan.

Fight For Lieut. Governor

The contest for the republican nomination for lieutenant governor was a four-cornered affair. The candidates were Secretary of State Albert P. Lantry, who has held his present office since 1911 with the exception of two years when the democrats were in power; Congressman Alvin T. Fuller,

Hairs Will Vanish After This Treatment

You can keep your arms, neck or face free from hair or fuzz by the occasional use of plain talcine and in using it you need have no fear of marring or injuring the skin. A thick paste is made by mixing some of the powdered talcine with water. Then spread on the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and all traces of hair have vanished. Be careful, however, to get real talcine.—Adv.

R. R. ENGINEERS OUT WITH STATEMENT

Men in the Cabs Declare Talcine Conserves the Health of Railroad Men and Makes Them Fit

No calling demands a clearer brain, steadier nerves, a more perfect state of health than that of a railroad engineer. The safety of thousands depends on guarding his health, which is as important to the public as the efficiency of his engine. Every engineer realizes this and is constantly endeavoring to take chances with so important a matter. That is why so many of them are using Talcine. It steadies the nerves, keeps him on his job, and insures the safety of the traveler.

Have you heard engineers everywhere endorse Talcine because they have tried it and know. Read what they say:

J. N. Summerville, 3520 Michigan Ave., Kansas City, Mo., who was engineer on the Chicago & North Western for nine years, says: "If I could have had this medicine years ago, I would not have had to quit my job on the road. I cheerfully recommend Talcine to anyone looking for something to build them up. I would not be without it for anything."

L. C. Powers, 510 First Avenue, South Nashville, Tenn., engineer Tennessee Central, says: "Stomach troubles and nervousness overtook me. I was in bed for weeks. Talcine cured me. I can say about Talcine—'It's a wonder'."

D. A. McMillen, 1117 Glenview Street, Houston, Tex., engineer Southern Pacific, says: "Was in bed shade—couldn't sleep. Talcine built me up like a new man—gained 15 pounds."

North Cedar Rapids, Iowa, engineer at the Rock Island railroad shops, says: "The best report I can give is that Talcine was the only thing for me. It has helped me in everything and built me up. I balance the scales at 170 pounds."

G. C. Ayers, 117 Barnes Avenue, Nashville, Tenn., engineer Louisville & Nashville, says: "Talcine cured my nervousness, poor appetite. Talcine put me in good shape—gained 15 pounds."

T. J. Owens, 209 Avenue G, Birmingham, Ala., engineer, says: "Run down—indigestion—putification of heart—had to give up. Talcine cured me. Talcine can cure anything—have come back to work."

H. L. Thomas, engineer, 152 N. Brooks Street, Chicago, Ill., says: "The deep, drawn lines in my face told the story of my recent years of suffering. After taking Talcine, I have a different story to tell. I am much better than I was. My nerves are steady as a rock and I feel like a new man."

T. G. Burrows, 3515 McKinney Avenue, Houston, Texas, engineer, St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico, says: "Catastrophe of heart and stomach—headaches—nervous—Talcine is railroad man's friend—feel like a new man."

Lynn Ellis, 440 North Bellevue Ave.,

Mer. Speaker Joseph E. Warner, of the state house of representatives, and Charles L. Burrill, who for five years was state treasurer, retiring last year.

Five candidates sought the nomination for secretary of state. They were Frederick W. Cook, city clerk of Somerville; James G. Harris, a member of the executive council; James W. Bean, a former state representative; Samuel W. George and Russell A. Wood.

A contest that aroused general interest was that for the republican nomination for treasurer. The only name to appear on the ballot was that of Fred J. Farrell, who resigned from that office last week and at the same time asked his supporters not to vote for him.

Farrell resigned after he had been severely criticized, particularly by republican leaders for collecting contracts for his advertising agency while he was state treasurer.

James Jackson, who has been nominated by Governor Coolidge to complete Burrill's term, gave up his position as director of the New England division of the Red Cross before Burrill resigned, in order to become a candidate for state treasurer at the request of the associated republican clubs of Massachusetts.

Frederick N. Kerr, who was defeated for the nomination last year, also entered the field. It was then too late to get either name on the ballot and today supporters of Jackson and Kerr voted for their candidates by means of stickers.

Light Vote Expected

The republican congressmen who were opposed for re-nomination today were Frederick H. Gillet, speaker of the house; Calvin D. Paige, Robert Luce and Joseph Walsh. Six candidates contested for the republican nomination in the ninth district where Congressman Fuller gave up the possibility of another term to seek the nomination for lieutenant governor.

Congressman Richard Cheney and Peter F. Taggart were the democrats who had opposition. Taggart having seven rivals for the nomination in the 10th district, which is wholly in Boston.

There were three candidates for the republican nomination in the 10th. In spite of the increased registration, due to the granting of suffrage to women, a light vote was predicted. The weather was unfavorable in many parts of the state.

Larceny of Army Blankets

drivers of Ayer city and of Lowell would be involved in the traffic of stolen government goods because of the assistance which they rendered to the soldiers in getting them from the camp.

The police visited another house in the outskirts of the city last night with a search warrant, hoping to find more of the stolen goods, but with the arrest of Moomaw the night before, the owner of the house or the blank could not be found. They still hold the warrant and say that other men the city will be implicated.

On Sunday morning the police held one of the jitney drivers said to have helped Moomaw in getting the goods from the camp. The police say the soldier at first denied that he knew the chauffeur and that the jitney driver admitted that some soldiers hired him to go to Camp Devens with his seven-passenger car and that just outside of the camp in Shirley, the soldiers ordered him to stop and that they then loaded up the auto with blankets which were hidden in the woods.

Traveling towards Lowell, the soldiers ordered him to stop at North Chelmsford and then hid the load in the bushes. When asked by the police why he did not report the matter or why he didn't drive his auto right into camp, the jitney driver declared that he was afraid the soldiers would shoot him. The police say that Moomaw and Chakarian then made arrangements to take the blankets from North Chelmsford to this city.

Moomaw was arrested Saturday afternoon near 5 o'clock in a barber shop in Middlesex street by Lieut. Petrie and Constable Moore. Conroy, Doyle and Breault and O'Keefe as a result of watching waiting on the part of the officers. Petrie, Chakarian was arrested at 9 o'clock Saturday morning by Lieut. Petrie, Conroy and Moore and Chakarian was booked at 10:15 Sunday evening after arrest by the same three officers. The goods at Chakarian's house were recovered on Thursday night, but the officers withheld his arrest until Saturday so as to catch the soldier at the store.

The officers connected with the case, learned of the theft of the goods on Thursday afternoon when their suspicions were aroused by discovering so many blankets in Chakarian's house. Upon being questioned, Chakarian denied having any government goods, but after several grilling he admitted that he had a few in his lodging house. The officers then searched the house and found 38 blankets and 71 sheets upstairs and 65 blankets and 37 sheets hidden in the cellar.

After Chakarian admitted that the soldier had visited his place the police inspectors warned him that the courts would be severe with him if he tried to "rip off" Moomaw so that he wouldn't visit the store again. Officers Conroy and Moore hid in Chakarian's store all day Friday and until late Saturday afternoon before Moomaw appeared on the scene. Moomaw did not come to Lowell with a load Saturday afternoon to visit Chakarian, but had with him two telescopic instruments valued at $50 each and which he sold for $10. The soldier told the police that they were instruments used in military units and that he visited two stores with the idea of collecting $15 which was due him as balance on goods he had delivered. The officers followed him out of the store and arrested him in a barber shop in Middlesex street. He was turned over to a guard sent to this city from Camp Devens.

According to the police, Moomaw declared that the business in army goods has been going on for five months, that he had been connected with the work for only 10 days and that there were soldiers in the game. He refused to have any information about the other soldiers connected with the theft, because he said he would be termed a "squealer" at the camp and would be treated like a dog in the guard house. He also declared that the traffic was carried on in Worcester, Pittsburg and Boston, and that if goods were not sold in this city they were taken directly to Boston where easy sale was made. It is believed that the arrest of the soldier will lead to an extensive investigation in the quartermaster department in Camp Devens and that it will reveal the theft of $25,000 of $20,000 worth of goods.

The police inspectors have learned that 250 pairs of army shoes have been sold to business men in this city, but their search of the stores mentioned by Moomaw did not uncover anything. They are of the opinion that the shoes have been disposed of since, and that there is a lot more government goods concealed here.

Street Sprinkling

The mayor presented an order authorizing the assessment of the cost of street sprinkling against the property abutting on the highways treated. The sum to be assessed, named in the order, is $23,150. The average assessment is about six cents per linear foot. A supplementary list of streets that have been sprinkled last year, presented, but the amount of the assessment to be made thereon was not named. An order authorizing the appointment of both assessments was passed.

Asks to Be Retired

Mayor Thompson presented for the consideration of the council a petition of Karl Noyes, a police department chauffeur, asking that his name be placed upon the retired list. The petition was accompanied by certificates from the city physician and two other doctors stating that Noyes is incapacitated for service as the result of injuries received while in the performance of his duty. It was stated that the petitioner is 60 years old and has been employed in the police department for 12 years. The petition calls for retirement at half pay. The full pay of the petitioner, it was stated, has been $5 a day.

The petition and accompanying certificates were presented by the mayor and the information of the council and action was deferred to a future meeting.

Want Garage Permit

A petition from the Tidewater Oil company for the erection of a garage on Quebec street brought forth a protest from S. S. Dugdale, who said that he owned several houses in the vicinity. He claimed that a gasoline tank at the point would be dangerous and told of circumstances attendant upon the explosion of a gasoline tank nearby on a previous date. He said that many children frequented the neighborhood. He asserted that he had been informed by Chief Saunders of the fire department that the garage was to be located on another street.

Chief Saunders appeared and questioned the remonstrant.

"Do you object to the erection of a garage or the placing of gasoline tanks?" he asked the chief.

"I can't object to the tanks; they're all in," was the reply.

The petition was referred to the commissioner on water works and fire protection.

Petitions for permission to erect garages or install gasoline tanks were referred to the same commissioner from the following: Seno-Lowell shops, American Mason Safety Tread company, Worthing street; W. W. Carver company, Broadway and 116 Vernon street; Israel Steinberg, 116 Vernon street; G. E. Lavallee, 133 Mammoth road; Kennedy brothers, 19 Varunum av.; E. T. Brennan, 597 Chelmsford street; Lowell water works, Hampshire street; M. S. Colwell, 557 Gorham street; A. J. Cordier, 65 Bryant street; F. A. Wilson company, 638 Broadway; H. B. Eldridge, Tyler street.

Hearings on similar petitions were ordered for Sept. 22 at 10 a. m. from the following: William F. Gage, 125 Bryant street; E. S. Kendall, 191 Middle street; Mrs. Clement Lovell, Gorham street.

It was voted to add $237 to $2300 already appropriated for the purchase of land for the widening of Locke st.

The mayor was authorized to have drawn and sign a deed for the transfer of the Westford street fire station recently sold at auction.

A petition from H. Playlaw to move a building on Tyler street was referred to the commissioner on highways.

A number of matters pertaining to the location of telephone and electric poles and the placing of electric lines thereon were acted on.

The purchase of supplies, including grain, axle grease and glauber was authorized.

Tells Weak, Nervous People

What to Eat to Grow Vigorous

Doctors Agree That Present Day Foods Do Not Supply Enough Phosphate—A Vitality Necessary Element

And one that every druggist dispenses in known as Bitter-Phosphate and comes in tablet form all ready for use.

A few grains taken with meals multiply just the organic phosphate that most foods lack, and it taken regularly by so few grains with each meal ought to have wonderfully uplifting effect in a few weeks on people who are weak, become easily fatigued, or are growing old and discouraged before their time.

Speaking of people who are easily fatigued, who lack ambition, nervous force and are oftentimes thin, weak and sickly looking in turn, healthy flesh, Dr. O. H. Harrigan, formerly visiting specialist Northeastern Dispensary, New York, says: "Patients who were apparently physical wrecks, who foodly thought they needed only a blood tonic to enrich the blood, have been treated with Bitter-Phosphate and their nerve force almost exhausted, in many such cases the administration of Bitter-Phosphate has produced seemingly magical results."

Physicians and hospitals have long recognized its value, especially in nervous conditions. So much so that Dr. Frederick Koll, author of medical text books and editor-in-chief of N. Y. Physicians' "Who's Who," led to make this statement:

"Bitter-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength, nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Any man or woman who wishes to become more vigorous and energetic to build up nerve force and endurance to fill out undeveloped hollows and to give old-time ambition can procure the simple remedy at A. W. Dow's drug store.

People who desire more will power, a keen alert mind and sturdy body, using Bitter-Phosphate all over the world today with splendid results.—Adv.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Resumption of trading in the stock exchange after the prolonged recess was marked by an irregular continuance of the week's advancing movement. The market was characterized by the most noteworthy feature, as a result of the recent merger of several of the leading industrial concerns, the fact that the market was not a market of speculation, but a market of business. The market was not a market of speculation, but a market of business. The market was not a market of speculation, but a market of business.

VITAMINES NECESSARY FOOD ELEMENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Attention—every housewife in the land! What are vitamins? Do you know? Do you know they are an element of food which is absolutely necessary to life—the importance of which is newly emphasized by recent experiments?

DR. CARL O. JOHNS

Time was when we heard on every hand that the elements absolutely necessary in our food were proteins, fats, carbohydrates and mineral salts.

—proteins to make muscle, fats and carbohydrates to supply heat and energy, mineral salts to make bone and teeth and the other hard portions of the body.

And calories! We were told that a man in such and such a sort of work must have so many thousand calories a day; and another man in another kind of work must have so many calories a day.

Now Dr. Carl O. Johns, in charge of the nutrition work in the bureau of chemistry of the United States department of agriculture, comes along and declares that vitamins are the most important food element in the world.

"We may have all the foods, but without vitamins we would get no good from them. A man may get his three to four thousand of calories daily, but unless they come from the right mixture of food ingredients, he may die. Vitamins are absolutely necessary to human life."

This is the fact most important for every housewife to know, in the opinion of Dr. Johns.

"All we know about vitamins," says one government chemist, "is that they are present in certain foods, and people and animals must have them. To live, we don't know what they look like, but we do know what they do."

Foods Rich in Vitamins
The foods richest in vitamins are yeast, peanuts, beans, spinach, oranges, grapefruit, lemons, lettuce, cabbage, milk, eggs and butter. There are three kinds of vitamins and they are all found in green vegetables and fruits, raw milk and eggs.

"The best source of vitamins is the leafy part of vegetables," says Dr. Johns. "That's why spinach, lettuce and cabbage are such good food. In eating celery we should eat the green leaves right along with the stalk."

"If we use a mixed diet, we can hardly make a mistake. Vitamins are certain chemical compounds, and have never been chemically analyzed in their pure state. They were given their name by Dr. Vladimir Funk, a Russian chemist. The diseases their absence cause are called 'deficiency diseases' because they result from something lacking in the diet."

Removed from Polished Rice
"Vitamins came into prominence a dozen years ago when the Filipinos were dying from beri-beri. They contracted the disease by eating only polished rice. It was found that it was the hulls, when fed to the patients, cured the disease. Then it was found they wouldn't contract the disease if fed whole rice. It was determined out of the rice by polishing it."

Dr. Johns says that mothers feeding their babies pasteurized milk should give them orange juice. Raw milk contains all the foods necessary to life, but when pasteurized the heating process kills some of the vitamins, and they must be supplied from another source.

"The first type of vitamins are known as water-soluble vitamins," explains Dr. Johns. "They are necessary to get growth from food. An animal or person will die of beri-beri, a disease of the nervous system, without them. A pigeon with beri-beri becomes paralyzed and cannot move and its head bends back. When it is in this condition we can give it food rich in water-soluble vitamins and it will soon recover. These kind of vitamins are found in all seeds in green plants, milk, eggs and yeast. By seeds we mean beans, nuts and the cereal grains."

The work of the United States reclamation service shows that 3,200,000 acres have been, or are being, reclaimed.

before the inspectors had a chance to explain their business. In accordance with an order signed by the acting secretary of agriculture, the federal quarantine against the European corn borer has been extended to include additional towns in Massachusetts and New York. In Massachusetts the towns are Bridgewater, East Bridgewater, Wareham and Whitman in Plymouth county; Canton, Dedham and Needham in Norfolk county; and Maynard and Westford in Middlesex county. The towns in New York are Broadalbin, in Fulton county, and Glen, in Montgomery.

This action by the department of agriculture supplements the former quarantine order of the secretary of agriculture, March 15, 1920, against certain parts of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York and Pennsylvania to prevent interstate shipment of carriers of the corn borer. No restrictions are placed upon shipments from points in the quarantined state, outside the infested areas.

The articles specifically covered in the quarantine are corn and broom corn including all parts of the stalk, cobs, green corn in the pod, beans with snap, spinach, rhubarb, oat and straw as such or when used as packing; cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, and hollyhock; and cut flowers or entire plants of gladiolus and dahlia, except the bulbs without stems. The restrictions do not apply to shelled corn and clean seed of broom corn, nor to other articles after they have been manufactured or processed in such way as to eliminate risk of carrying the corn borer.

All the articles may be moved interstate to points outside the infested area only after they have been inspected by the United States department of agriculture and certified to be free from the corn borer.

Mr. Moore gave the committee a telegram sent to Governor Cox by Frederick W. Enright, a publisher of Lynn, Mass., in which it was said that $30,000 had been raised there at a dinner of manufacturers addressed by Senator Lodge.

BOOZE SMUGGLER ARRESTED HERE

A method by which much of the liquor being sold in Lowell at the present time has been smuggled into this city was revealed about noon last Saturday when revenue officers seized a freight car of potatoes in which was concealed several gallons of whiskey. Because of the secrecy with which the arrest was made and the custom of the revenue officials to give out no information, it has not been possible to learn the names of those concerned in the affair.

It has been stated, however, that the man arrested for violation of the Volstead act is a resident of the state of Maine and that he was on hand in this city Saturday to supervise the unloading of the car full of potatoes when arrested by the revenue officers. The freight car of potatoes was shipped from Aroostook county, Me., and consigned to a Lowell dealer near whose place the shipper was arrested.

HOLIDAY TRAVEL HEAVY

The local ticket agent of the Boston Maine railroad reports that traffic over Sunday and Monday to and from Lowell was very heavy. There were no extra trains pressed into service, but in practically every instance every train leaving Lowell, either north or south, was filled to capacity, while on the other hand trains coming into Lowell carried numerous tourists returning from their vacation. The north-bound trains leaving Lowell were heavily patronized, a great many residents of Lowell going to the White mountains for the holiday. Numerous tickets for "over the line" were also sold at the local stations.

MANY AUTOS TAKE PART IN MIXUP

Yesterday afternoon there was a serious mixup of automobiles when five machines going at a lively pace were piled in a mass owing to the sudden stopping of the leader. William Adams, of North Andover, stopped short without putting out his hand to signal those behind. His auto was struck by another, that by a third and this by a fourth. Among those whose autos were damaged was Harold Lamb of 24 Putnam avenue, this city. Other cars injured were owned by Harry Vececk of Lawrence and H. C. Cummings, also of Lawrence. Somehow a big Packard sustained the greatest damage. While it was disabled a woman drove up and gave it another bang. None of the parties was injured, but the foundation was laid for a number of damage suits.
